York, October 19 .- (Special.)-The sensation of a campaign that has eplete with them was sprung today Mr. Nathan Strauss, who briefly, but emphasis which meant that coaxing id do no good, declined Tammany's ination for the mayoralty. The Declination Came.

VOL. XXVII.

STRAUSS IS OUT

and Hugh Grant Will Lead Tammany

Though the possibility of such an ac been talked of in political circles, but tle credence was given it by the general blic. The aspect of a man, after having tually accepted the most prominent office the gift of the people of New York, dening that nomination, was so unique hat most people heard the rumors and imply laughed at them. This morning, vever, the prophets did the laughing. At ut half-past 10 o'clock Mr. Strauss sent letter of declination to the Tammany ecutive committee. All day the big eight stled with the problem of successor and wrestled with Hugh Grant, for members of the committee were of one nd in their desire to have the ex-sheriff d ex-mayor become the organization's Hugh Grant the Man. Grant wasn't a bit anxious to have ar or which, under the circumstances, is a us honor at best, but after much perasion he submitted the terms and condions under which he would accept the nination, and these were promptly acded to by the authorized representatives the great organization.

So, the man who refused to allow the ammany convention to be stampeded in is favor finds himself again the leader, and ronger than ever the idol of the Tam-It is one of the most peculiar moves ever de on the political chessboard. Naturally there are at this time many nions as to its possible and probable effects, and anything on that line must surmise, pure and simple.

A Look Into the Causes. The causes which led up to Mr. Strauss's decision have been explained in the telegraphic columns of The Constitution.

Senator Hill's decision in favor of allowing Mr. Grace and his followers, who are supporting Mr. Strong for mayor as the state democracy, to use the state demo cratic ticket at the head of their city ticket was the immediate cause, but there are strong evidences that it was more the culmination of a series of causes.

Mr. Strauss was indignant at Senator that the Tammany ticket was the only lemocratic ticket in the field, and when Mr. Grace told of Senator Hill's decision Mr. Strauss at once dispatched a trusted messenger to Albany to see if the story was

The correspondence between the two leaders is not yet complete, but immediately upon the return of the messenger Mr. Strauss sent in his letter of declination, which was given to the press tonight. It is probable that he was disheartened on acount of the conditions of the campaign, and was glad to get out of it; at least, that s the opinion of the politicians.

The Rank and File Delighted. The rank and file of Tammany didn't warm up to Strauss, and the anti-Tammany campaign is being waged with a degree of vigor calculated to strike terror to the heart of a political novice like the great

So much for the cause. Now a word as to the effect of the declination.

There is joy in Tammany hall tonight The boys have a candidate after their own heart and he is unquestionably the strongest man who could have been taken from inside the organization. In two campaigns has he swept this great city. At Tammany hall I found everybody apparently confident that he could do it again.

At Colonel Strong's headquarters there was also a large amount of jubilation. The ounty democracy people, the republicans and the other anti-Tammany elements feel onfident of winning this year, and they feel that to fight a typical Tammanyite like Grant will make victory the more certain. The lines are drawn, so there can be no equivocation. It is Tammany and anti-Tammany to the death.

The Feeling in the City. Here in New York city the mayoralty race overshadows everything else; but to the outsider the most interesting question is how will this move affect the state ticket? The consensus of opinion as I find it mixing with all elements tonight, is that it will help rather than hurt the democratic state ticket. The decision of Mr. Hill has not displeased Tammany at all. It may be that Mr. Strauss's personal friends, some go so far as to say the majority of the people of his religion, will feel affronted and will vote against Hill, but it is not likely there will be a large deflection from this source. If there is, it will be fully offset by the votes which will be brought to the ticket through the medium of the Strong ticket.

The Surface Indications. These, at least, are the surface indications. How the trading and scratching on the city tickets will affect the result, nobody can tell. With his share of these traded votes, Mr. Hill stands a good show of winning.

It looks better tonight than at any time since the campaign opened. J. K. OHL.

STRAUS DECLINES.

"NATHAN R. STRAUSS." Mr. Strauss has received no written reply from Mr. Hill so far as is known. Hill at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., October 19 .- Senator David Bennett Hill was given an onthusiastic reception tonight at Music hall, where 5,000 people had congregated. When Senator Hill and Hon, Daniel N. Lockwood, the nominee for lieutenant governor, made their appearance on the platform they received an ovation. Mr. Lockwood was the first speaker. He denounced the proposed apportionment and spoke at length on the evils of the Sherman silver law and the McKinley tariff.

When Senator Hill, who was the next speaker, was introduced it was some time before he could proceed with his remarks on account of the enthusiastic demonstra tions of the audience. After the meeting Mr. Hill held an informal reception at the Iroquois hotel. He remains here tonight and leaves for Jamestown at 8:2 o'clock tomorrow morning, where he speaks tomorrow afternoon and at Olean in the evening. He will leave for Albany tomor-

THE PLAN IS MUCH ADMIRED.

And Will Be Adopted with But Little Change.

Showing What Is Going on Among the Politicians in the National Capital.

Washington, October 19.-(Special.)-The plans of the government building at the Atlanta exposition, a sketch of which has been sent The Constitution, have been photographed under direction of Acting Chief Supervising Architect Kemper and are now only waiting approval of the postmaster general and secretary of the interior.

No material change from the prepared plans is contemplated. The plans were drawn after full consultation by the architect with members of the government board, who gave him details of the exact space each department desired. Each member of the board has expressed approval of the plans and is satisfied with the division of space. In the entrance extensions on the two fronts will be the offices and reception rooms of the board.

The only change contemplated at present is the rearrangement of the top tower so as to accommodate a naval searchlight for Acting Supervising Architect Kemper, who is a member of the government board, said today he expected to go down to Atlanta very scon. He wants to survey the ground and get a personal view of the location for the government building.

Mr. Kemper is a Virginian, a graduate of Washington and Lee university and a gentleman of taste and culture. He will, perhaps, make repeated visits to Atlanta during the construction of the building and while the exposition is in progress.

IF SHE CAN LOCATE IT. Madeline Can Now Get the $13,000

Awarded Her. Washington, October 19 .- On a motion by Calderon Carlisle, counsel for Madalene Pollard in the case of Pollard vs. W. C. P. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, the court o appeals of the District of Columbia ordered the appeal which had been asked for in this case stricken from the docket of the court on the ground that it had not beer entered within the statuatory time. This ends the litigation as far as the courts of the District of Columbia are concerned and leaves the plaintiff free to collect her judgment of $15,000 and costs from Colone when and how she can.

Colonel Breckinridge's salary for th remainder of his congressional term is exempt by law from seizure and there is no provision in the laws of the District of Co. umbia, as there is on the statute books of some of the states, for the arrest and detention of any person about to leave the jurisdiction of the state without complying with the judgments of its courts.

MURDERED A GIRL.

Horrible Butchery at a Farmhous Near Albione, N. Y.

Albione, N. Y., October 19.-A most das tardly murder occurred at the residence of Joseph Vancamp, at Sawyer, eight miles north of Albione, at 8 o'clock last night. Emma Hunt, a girl eighteen years old, had worked for Vancamp since last spring. She was very pretty and had a good character. Willam Lake, twenty-six years old and unmarried, had also worked at the same place. He had paid attention to the Hunt girl throughout the summer.

About 8 o'clock last evening Mr. Van camp, with his family, went to town and returned home about an hour later. When he entered the house he found Emma lying on the floor in the sitting room with a hammer by her side. There was a large wound on her temple. Her throat had been cut and her bowels cut down and across completely disemboweling her. Blood was spattered on the doors and wall, and it was also found on the outside of one of the doors, showing that Emma had made a hard fight for her life. Lake was missing and no trace of him could be found Sherif not captured him up to an early hour this

CONVICTED OF MURDER.

A Dispensary Constable Who May Have to Hang.

Spartamburg, S. C., October 19 .- (Special.)-Jack Bladon, a dipensary constable who kill ed Henry Palmer, a negro in this city last December, was convicted of murder tonight The verdict was a great surprise, as Bladon was out on a small bond and ten of the jury were strong Tillmanites. Henry Pal mer was a negro accused of selling liquors. Bladon, one of the most desperate men or the force, went to arrest him. The negre ran and Bladon shot him through the back of the head. It is thought if Governor Tillman follows his custom by pardoning Bladon trouble will follow. The jury deliberated four hours and returned a verdict tonight a 11:15 o'clock.

Fogarty. Knoxville, Tenn., October 19.—Thomas Fogarty, fireman on the Southern railway, was shot in the back and probably fatally wounded by Mrs. Lyde Rhodes at 12:30 o'clock this morning. The woman is a seam stress and he went to her house and knocked for admission. She refused to let him in and told him to leave or she would shoot. He then knocked the door down and entered the house, when she shot him with a 38-caliber pistol in the back. Mrs. Rhodes was arrested, but gave bail.

Satolli Will Be a Cardinal.

Baltimore, October 19.—A clergyman of Cardinal Gibbons's household today confirm-ed the report that Monsignor Satolli will become a cardinal. "This much is all that car be stated with certainty," he said. "Seven-tenths of what has been printed upon this subject is the vaguest speculation."

In addition to the fact that the archbishop will be made a cardinal, the most that can be said is that he will probably be named as such at the next consistory, which will convene in Rome, most probably in December of this year.

HILL'S GREAT FIGHT

Which the Government Is Going to Brect | Against the Odds of Republicans and Bushwhackers.

> TREACHERY OF THE ANTI-SNAPPERS Who Are Damning Hill with Faint

GENERAL WASHINGTON NEWS NOTES WHAT WILL MR. CLEVELAND DOP

His Approva!, If He Ever Gives It. Has Been So Long Delayed That It Will Do No Good When It Comes.

New York, October 19 .- (Special.)-The political situation in New York has never been more mixed than at present. Everything is in doubt, and there is no telling what will be the outcome of the state election which takes place on the 6th of November.

The republicans are confident-more confident than they have been in any campaign in ten years. They do not conceal their good humor, and it is easy to observe in the countenance and the demeanor of any well-posted republican the fact tnat victory is relied upo.. in next month's election. While, of course, there is nothing definite as indicative of the result in the way the betting is going, still it is considered as one of the political straws which drift with the current wind. Phil Dwyer who is a democrat and an intimate friend of Dick Croker, posted $2,000 to $1,000 two nights ago that Morton would be the next governor of New York. The bet was taken, and Dwyer says that while he is a demo crat, and will vote and work for the straight ticket, he will win the money. There is no doubt that the odds are in favor of republican success, if betting can be taken as a criterion.

Hill Working Hard. Senator Hill is making the most active canvass that he has ever made in any of his numerous contests in the state. He realizes the fact that he has up-hill work, and if the state is lost it will not be through any fault of his. Senator Hill is a poor man. He has been in public life in New York for a great many years, and he is as poor today as when he first took public office. His opponent, Mr. Morton, is a man of immense wealth, being many times a millionaire. Not only that, but he has the reputation of an exceedingly liberal giver for campaign purposes, more especially when he is at the head of the ticket. Everybody knows that this is why Morton was put at the head of the republican ticket this year. He had a barrel, and with forton to lead it was well understood that the barrel would be at the disposal of the republican campaign committee. He has sent floods of money to every county in the state and expects to counteract the enthu-siasm which Hill is creating by his speaking tour by a liberal supply of money for campaign purposes. Morton cannot speak. He would be at a love on the stump in a political campaign, but what he lacks in the power of oratory will be more than abundantly supplied in cash contributions Bushwhackers at Work. To add to the democratic embarrassi there is a bad split in the party in New which took the field against Hill after he swept the state convention by storm two years ago in the contest for the presiden tial nomination has reorganized and is in for bloody work. At its head is Charles S Fairchild, who was Mr. Cleveland's secretary of the treasury, and who is one of the president's most intimate personal friends in New York. Through him this organization, calling themselves reform democrats, are not only doing everything in their power to defeat Hill, but to defeat the democratic congressional candidates in New York city. That they may make their power felt, not by the success of their own candidates, but by the defeat of the candidates of the regular democracy, they have put up "dummy" democrats in all the congressional districts in New York city, and threaten to do the same thing in four districts in Kings county. The aemocratic nominations were made a week or ten days ago, and within the last few days the Fairchild bolters have brought out their men, and the prospects are that they will persist in running them, thus creating democratic confusion and division in every congressional district in this city. party is in great danger of losing the dem ocratic majority of congressmen from New York state, and all through the cowardly activity of the Fairchild bolters.

What Is the Animus? The true democrats of the state are at loss to understand the animus of the ant snapper game in their mad effort to crus the democratic party in New York. They are working now just on the same lines as they did two years ago when they bolted the New York state convention and sent a Cleveland contesting delegation to the Chicago convention.

At the recent state convention at Sara toga, when Senator Hill was unanimously nominated over his protest, all factions seemed to intuitively turn to him to lead the party out of the embarrassing situation into which they had drifted. Those who represented the Cleveland element of the party in the convention were apparently specially enthusiastic in their desire have Hill take the lead. When he at first refused to do so they entreated him earnestly to give his consent, stating that was a matter of party necessity, and that he had no right to refuse when every loyal democrat turned to him as the only man who could avert impending disaster. The convention was swept by storm for Hill, notwithstanding the fact that he fought such action step by step. Hill did not want the nomination. Everybody knows that Not only that, he was very anxious to avoid being put in the position where he would have to refuse it. He plead with the leaders in private to leave his name out of consideration, and when the convention as-sembled it was understood that his name would not be presented in connection with the gubernatorial nomination. When Mr. Whitney arrived, however, in New York from Europe, pending the action of the convention, and when he telegraphed that under no circumstances would be accept the nomination and that Hill was the man for the place the convention lost control of itself, and Hill's name swept everything before it like the rushing waters of a bro-

Cooling Arder. The most remarkable development since the convention has been the apparent cool the convention has been the apparent cooling down of the enthusiasm of some of those of the anti-snapper element, who were most conspicuous at Albany, in the eagerness with which they bersuaded Hill to accept the nomination. Instead of helping the party this element is doing it infinitely more harm than good. Even the declaration of many of them that they will support Hill is beclouded with the damna-

"Oh, yes," say some of them, who are not unwilling to go to the extremes to which Fairchild has gone and openly bolt, "we will support Hill, but—." There is always a "but." It is a "but" here, and a "but" there, and a "but" somewhere else. Another interesting study is the attitude of the federal officeholders in New York city—or of such of them as are democrats, for it must be expected that a part of the such of them.

for it must be remembered that a vast army of republican officeholders are still doing business at the old stand in New York. But the democratic officeholders are ner-vous. They don't know which way to turn —to the right or to the left. They are apparently afraid that if they give Hill their undivided and hearty support they will en-gender presidential disfavor, and they are unwilling to risk that. They do not know where the president stands, whereas a word from him two weeks ago would have put in line for active working every demo-cratic officeholder in New York state. As it is now most of them are as silent as clams. They are afraid to talk, afraid to work and afraid to let it be known where they stand. The Attitude of the President.

Nobody knows what the president is go-ing to do. His friends here day after day promise that the next will bring a word of encouragement from him, and that he will make it thoroughly understood that his sympathies are with Hill, and that he wants to see the regular ticket elected from top to bottom. On the other hand, Fairchild and his anti-snappers are laughing in their sleeves, and are pointing day after day to the fact that another day has elapsed without a declaration or an en-couraging word from the president, and they are impressing the idea that the president's silence cannot be construed otherwise than as indicating his approval of the bolters. They openly charge that he does not want Hill elected, and that he will do nothing to assist him, notwithstanding the fact that after Cleveland secured the nomination over Hill the latter immediately an nounced that he would give his loyal sup-port to the nomination, and that he would stump the state for him, which he did with marked effect.

Can This Be True?

The rumor is prevalent in New York that the president would be sadly disappointed at Hill's success, and that he wants to be in a position where he and his friends can charge democratic catastrophe to the wick-edness and the weakness of David Bennett Hill. It is said that the extreme Cleveland ites want to be in a position where, on the 7th day of Növember, they can point to the result in New York and say, "Ah, that shows how the people of New York measare David Bennett Hill and Grover Cleve land. Two years ago Grover swept everything before him in New York, and now David Bennett Hill has been crushed! Who can doubt now which of the two speaks the sentiment of New York

Hill has four more years in the senate and Cleveland has two more years as pres ident. It is held by many that the latte is of the opinion that the defeat of Hill this time would crush the life out of his at-titude of hostlity to the president as a member of the senate. If Hill is defeated the anti-snappers, the mugwumps and the cuckoos will claim it to be the voice of disapproval of the democrats of New York Hill's course of opposition to the president from the floor of the senate.

The president may write a letter after all. It may come next Monday, or it may come later on. When it comes, if it eve omes, it will be found that it will be brief and hazy. Of course, if he is to write a letter the delay is for a purpose. To have accomplished the full measure of good which he as president could have done to the democratic ticket, his approval should have been sent immediately after the nomination. It was not, however, and on the delay the bolting democrats have built up a strong sentiment of opposition, founded on the idea that the president's sympathies were with them. Nothing that he could do now would undo the damage that has been done by his delay.

TRAIN ROBBERY IN TEXAS. About Six Thousand Dollars Taken by the Robbers.

Fort Worth, Tex., October 19.-(Special.)-At 3 o'clock this afternoon a dispatch was eceived from Secretary Mills, of the Texas Pacific Coal Company at Thurber Junction on the Texas Pacific, west of this city ninety-five miles, stating that a train had been robbed near Gordon, but that the coal company money was safe, as the robbers could not open the safe. The nioney was for the monthly pay roll of the em-ployes of the coal company at Thurber, and had been placed in the express car in a burglar proof safe, the combination of which the messenger did not know, hence the robbers were unable to gain access to

Inquiry by telephone at the express com pany's office failed to elicit any information concerning the robbery, Agent Gill being out, and the employes in the office claiming to be entirely ignorant of the robbery. From railway employes it is learned that about $16,000 in local packages was secured from the Pacific Express Company, and it s reported that a larger sum, estimated as high as $50,000, was taken from the through safe, though this report is not confirmed. The robbers were five in number and held up the passengers in the coaches and sour-ed a large misclianeous collection of watches, money and other booty. No one was injured, so far as was learn ed, though it is reported the robbers took a couple of shots at the porter. Later reports state that the robbers blew open the coal company's safe but were urable to get to the $16,000 contained there-

Governor O'Ferral, of Virginia, Calls Upon Governor Brown, of Maryland.

Richmond, Va., October 19.—(Special.)-Governor O'Ferrall tonight issued a requisition upon Governor Brown, of Mary-land, for the surrender to the Virginia au-thorities of C. J. Searcy, who is in the Cumberland, Md., jail under suspicion of being one of the outlaws who held up the passenger train at Aquia creek and robbed the express car. His excellency de-clines to say what evidence the state has, but he feels thoroughly confident that Searcy is one of the bandits and, perhaps, leader of the gang. The requisition had to be issued upon affidavit, no grand jury having been empanelled, and it is likely that one of the express messengers who were in the car that was rified, made the sworn statement upon which the statement upon which the papers are based. Commonwealth Attorney White, of Stafford county, arrived here late this evening, in obedience to a telegram from the governor and Sheriff Kennedy, and Mr. Herring, the express company's Washing-ton manager, came in on the midnight executive mansion. Sheriff Kennedy will leave on the 7 o'clock morning train for Cumberland so as to have the requisition there when the case comes up tomorrow afternoon on habeas corpus. DOCTORS SAY HE IS SLOWLY SINKING.

And His Death May Be Looked for at Any Moment.

AN IMPERIAL EDICT TO BE ISSUED

ng the Regency in the Czarcovitch. The Vienna Papers Believe the Czar Is Dead, But the News Not Given Out.

St. Petersburg, October 19.-Advices received from Livadia this morning are of an extremely disquieting nature. Until 7 o'clock last evening the condition of the czar had not changed throughout the day. The celebrated nerve specialist, Professor Mershiewski, was summoned to Lavadia yesterday. Crowds of people gather around the official bulletins and cross themselves as they read them. A Restless Night.

A bulletin issued at Livadia at 10 o'clock tonight says that the czar passed Thursday night almost without sleep. His mafesty rose this morning as usual. His general weakness and the action of the heart are unchanged. The oedwaffet, which previously appeared, has increased. His general condition is unchanged. This bulletin is signed by the five doctors in attendance upon his majesty.

An Imperial Edict.

It is reported here this afternoon that an imperial edict will be published next Monday entrusting the regentry to the czarwitch general. norski, minister of war. Condition Extremely Critical. London, October 19.-The latest dispatches received at the Russian embassy here state that the condition of the czar is extremely critical. The news of his condition has case a gloom over St. Petersburg, Berlin, Cologne, Athens and other continental sities. A dispatch to The Globe from Paris this afternoon says that private advices received at the French capital indicate that the condition of the czar is hopeless and that the end is near. This news has caused a most profound sensation everywhere. Attacked with a Spasm. here from Livaida, by way of St. Petersburg, says that yesterday the czar was suddenly attacked with a spasm directly affecting his breast. He was compelled to lie down and his confessor, Father Yanischew, was summoned immediately. Nevertheless the dispatch says Professor Leiden has hopes of his majesty's ultimate recovery. Sinking Slowly. Vienna, October 19.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg to the Foreign office says that the czar is sinking slowly and the news of his death may come at any moment.

Press Articles on the Czar. London, October 19.-Dispatches from all parts of the continent show that the whole European press is brimming with articles on the czar. The majority of writers praise him for his love of peace. Speculation as to the czarewitch's future policy is rife. No two estimates of his character agree. Many of them are exceedingly unfavorable. The censorship of the St. Petersburg press is reported as being unusually strict. The newspaper which announced yesterday that Father Ivan, better known as Holy John, had been summoned from Cronstadt to Livadia was seized by the police. The Allgemeine Zeitung, in Vienna, suggested this evening that the czar was already dead and the fact was concealed, as it was in the case of Emperor Nicholas I.

The Russian embassy in Rome received a dispatch tonight saying that a miracle alone could save the czar's life. Pravers are offered hourly in the Russian cathedrals and daily in the Russian churches and the chapels of Russian embassies in

ORDERED TO SEA. The Chinese Fleet at Port Arthur

Active-Japs to Cross the Yula. London, October 19.—A dispatch to The Globe from Tien-Tsin says that the Chinese fleet at Port Arthur was yesterday ordered to sea. The Japanese army is expected to Cross Yula river thirty miles northeast of Kwi-Him-Ching, at which place the Chinese troops are encamped.

The Norwegian steamer, Piek, which has arrived at Tien-Tsin from Shanghai, was stopped off Shantung promontory by a Japanese war vessel and searched. Not having on board anything contraband of war, she was allowed to proceed.

Uprising in China.

London, October 19.-The Shanghai representative of the Central News positively reaffirms the statement that a small uprising has taken place at Ku-Lao-Hwei, two hundred miles from Han-Kow, in which nundred miles from han-kow, in which two inferior officers were killed.

The same dispatch says that the peculations of Sheng-Taotai, of Tien-Tsin, have been well known throughout China, but certain persons in exalted position have endeavored to suppress all mention of his irregularities.

Barcelona, October 19.—Ten dynamite bombs were found today near the engine of a large manufactory, where a number of anarchists were formerly employed. Fuses were attached. Among the anarchists, who were attached. Among the anarchists, who were at one time employed at these works, were two men who were executed som time ago in front of the fortress of Montguich. An investigation showed that the bombs were powerful enought to have caused great destruction.

London, October 15.—The statement made in The Pall Mall Gazette that grave differences exist between Lord Rosebery and the earl of Kimberley is officially denied and it is asserted upon the same authority that the premier and the foreign secretary are in perfect accord.

CUT TO PIECES.

Seaboard Air-Line Yesterday.

STEPPED BETWEEN CARS IN MOTION

Fell Under the Wheels and Was Pulled onerated by the Coroner's Jury.

At 5:30 yesterday afternoon W. B. Greer, a dagman on the Seaboard Air-Line road. stepped in to couple the cars of a moving freight train at Belt Junction and was instantly killed.

His body was horribly mutilated, and when the train stopped scarcely anything but a mangled mass remained. Corone Jones, of DeKalb, was notified at once. An inquest was held and a verdict was rendered to the effect that the man came to his death from his own carelessness. This morning at 1 o'clock the remains were brought into Atlanta and will be kept at Undertaker Patterson's until called for by his relatives.

Greer came to Atlanta three weeks ago and applied at the office of the Seaboard Air-Line for work. He said that he had been recently a conductor on a freight train running from Savannah, and that he had a brother in that city. He came originally, he said, from Bearstown, a small station on the Athens branch of the Geor gia road. His parents reside there.

The man was about thirty-five years old. and of splendid physique. His appearance made a favorable impression, and he was put immediately to work. Since then he has filled the place of flagman. He was employed in that capacity yesterday afternoon when killed.

Green was on the incoming freight due in Atlanta at 6 o'clock. The train, in charge of Conductor Dick Lawton and Engineer Joe Sauceman, arrived at the Belt junction on time, and was preparing to side track in order to let the passenger pass. Severa cars were to be left there also, and it was for that purpose that Greer left the caboose,

At the time the train was moving slowly Conductor Lawton signalled for it to stop, but in his haste presumably, to uncouple the cars, Greer did not wait for the train to come to a stand. The conductor saw him jump lightly between the cars and called to him to take care. It was too late. As Greer stepped in his foot tripped, and he was thrown across the track. He was cut to pieces in an instant and the train rolled on for ten feet before it could be stopped.

Conductor Lawton rushed to the place and with several others of the crew lifted out the mangled remains. They were taken to the yards of the Seaboard Air-Line. The coroner was notified, and when he arrived ordered that the remains be carried back to the scene of the accident. Here the inquest was held. Only one or two witnesses were examined. Conductor Lawton testified that he was standing near the rear of the train. It was slacking up for the purpose of putting off some cars. He saw Greer go in between the cars while the train was moving and called to him. He thought that Greer was impatient to get to town, and wanted to get through quick. Greer must have fallen just as he stepped in. Possibly he tripped on the track. He saw the cars bumping up and he knew that he had been caught under the wheels. Greer was dead when he came up. Conductor Lawton also testified that it was strictly against the rules of any road to step between the cars while in motion. A negro brakeman, who was on the same train, testfied that he saw Greer step in between the cars while they were moving.

Engineer Sauceman knew nothing except that he had been signaled to stop and was slacking up.

This morning shortly after 1 o'clock the remains of the dead man were brought into Atlanta in Patterson's undertaking wagon. They will be kept at the establishment until sent for by his parents.

While Greer was with the road only s short while he was considered a splendid man, and had shown himself to be one of the best workmen on the line. Conductor Lawton and the rest of the crew were ter-ribly grieved over the accident. A verdict was handed in by the cor-oner's jury to the effect that death was caused by the flagman's own carelessness.

REST IN OAKLAND.

Home to Be Buried.

Lived for a Number of Years in Japan. Was Once One of Atlanta's Most Popular Young Ladies

The body of Mrs Alice Craig Lambuth, wife of Captain R. W. Lambuth, of Culleoka, Tenn., was laid to rest in the Craig family lot in Oakland cemetery yesterday

Mrs. Lambuth was the daughter of Dr. H. L. W. Craig, who was a resident of Atlanta, well known and prominent throughout the state, and a leading member of the journalistic school at one time, and her death recalls to mind the prominence of ner family, the love in which she was held before she left Atlanta, and the story of a life full of interest to many who were res-idents of Atlanta during the lifetime of her

In the early '80s Miss Lambuth, then one of the most popular young ladies of the city, was married to Captain R. W. Lambuth, around whose life there entwines an interesting history, too, Captain Lambuth was a son of an eminent divine who was among the very first missionaries that went to Japan. At the time the Rev. Dr. Lambuth and als wife sought the orient, there was more danger in the missionary field than there is today. But with a trust in the Master he was serving, he went to the Japanese country. While he was a resident of that country Captain Lambuth was born and the early anese. In the early 80's he visited the United States and made a tour of the country. Among other points he visited was Atlanta, and while he was here he became acquaint. ed with the lady who became his wife. After Captain Lambuth was wedded he was offered a fine position with the Japanese government and to that country he went. While he was residing in Japan a daughter was born to him and the still lives. A few years ago Captain Lambuth decided to return to his home country and he settled at Culleoka, where he was placed at the head of the academy in that place, one of the finest schools in the country

For several years Mrs. Lambuth had a victim to consumption, but she kept up remarkably well until a few months ago, when she began sinking rapidly. Her death occurred Thursday morning at 12 o'clock and the remains reached Atlanta yesterday morning at 7 o'clock, Mr. Jack Craig, who is now with J. W. Phillips & Co., but who has, for years been with the James's bank, a brother of the lady, Rev. Dr. Barnett, who was her pastor during her residence in Atlanta, and other friends were at the union depot when the body arrived. It was taken direct to Oakland cemetery and laid to rest in the family burying lot.

Mrs. Lambuth was a pure, gentle Chris-tian woman, and her entire life was given to the cause of her Master. While in Japan with her husband she devoted her time to working for the cause she loved so dear ly, and much of her good work showed fruits before she left that country for her old home. Raised in the atmosphere of Christianity, surrounded all of the time by the best and most holy influences he knew but one cause and that was teaching the word and doctrine of her Master.

The remains were accompanied by he bereaved husband and by Dr. Lambuth, D. D., who is a brother of the husband, and who is secretary to the board of the Methdist Episcopal church, south, and his wife. Mrs. Lambuth was twenty-eight years of age, and was a member of the First Presyterian church of Atlanta, the Rev. Dr. Barnett being her pastor.

President Cleveland's suggestion of arbitration of labor disputes gives general satisfaction. According to the white house chef he also appreciates the results of cooking with Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder.

HIS TIME TO SMILE.

The Horrible Death of a Flagman on the Mrs. Lambuth Brought Back to Her George Oakes Is Back and Gives an Account of His Trip to Columbus.

STORY OF AN INTERESTING LIFE SAYS HE LIVED LIKE A PRINCE.

A Burglar Enters a Blacksmith's Room and Relieves Him of His Clothes and Pocketbook-Another Burgiar.

George Oaks, that peculiar individual whose strange tale to Chief Williams, of Columbus, caused the arrest in that city of the two men supposed to be Tom Delk and Buck O'Snields, appeared in Atlanta yesterday.

He wore a huge smile and told about the affair with keen enjoyment. "Me an' them fellers were a-travelin' to-gether," he said, "and they gets mad with me because I wouldn't divy up the boodle with 'em. I went to the chief and I says, I can tell him where he can get two good escapes, and he says 'where?' and then I tells him where Thomson and Johnson are lying out. He asked me then who they were and I told him, 'Tom Delk and Buck

"I was a wantin' somethin' to eat, too, and I knew if I told him that I would get all I wanted to chew. Soon as I let him cn, he calls me into his office and asks me all about who they are, and I tells him that they are the biggest game in the state.

"I had a fat time then. That man calls me into his office and gives me all I wants to drink. He handed me over a jur and told me to just help m'self. I took a lulu swig and then he sends out to the restaurant for dinner. I had all I wanted. He calls fer some 10-cents cigars and gives them over

"I knew he had telegraphed to Chief Con nelly and that he was a-waitin' for the answer. After a while the answer came and he looked over at me and smiled. 'You're right,' he says; "there's a pretty good reward for them ducks. Can you show me where they are?' I says 'sure,' and he says, 'take another drink.' He sent two or three telegrams to Atlanta and every time he got an answer he would tell me to hit the jug-and I hit it, too.

"I went out in the everin' to show the police where those fellers was. I rode in a fine buggy and the coppers walked. Then they caught the boys and I came back. Bet yer sweet life I never had such a high old time as I had that night. I filled up on a good hotel supper and pulled in at a fustrate boardin' place.

"Nex' mornin' Officer Bevers came down from Atlanta to see who them fellers were, and I knew it was a case of hide out for me, so I lit to the country. Yesterday I hit a freight train and I got in here this morn-

Robbed the Blacksmith.

Last night at 9 o'clock the room of H. Davis, 60 North Broad street, was entered by a burglar and a large amount of goods taken away. No one was at the place at the time, and the burglar, after entering the window, had the whole place to himself. Besides the clothing with which he escaped, he carried off a box containing $65. This was locked in the trunk. The affair will be investigated by the detectives this morning. Mr. Davis operates a blacksmith shop, and was there when the burglary occurred.

A small negro was arrested by Patrolman Hollingsworth yesterday upon the charge of burglarizing the store of Sims & Aiken on Decatur street. The place was entered Friday night and a lot of hams taken out.

To Try the Porter.

Walter Wright, the negro porter who was arrested upon the charge of robbing Douglass, Thomas & Davis, will be given a pre-liminary hearing this morning before Justice Landrum. A lot of other goods supposed to be taken by the negro were discovered yesterday. Detective Ivy has recovered in all over $300 worth of stolen property.

PATROLMAN WILSON DEAD.

A Well-Known Member of the Police

Force Passes Away Yesterday. Yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock Patrolman J. C. Wilson, one of the best known members of the police fore, died at his home on Greensferry avenue. For over a week Wilson had been off duty, but until Wednesday he was not considered seriously ill. Yesterday morning he was thought to be better, but about noon he took a sudden turn for the worse and died in two hours. Wilson had been with the department four years, and was looked upon as a careful and efficient officer. The arrangements for his funeral will be made today.

PULLING IN GEORGIANS

Who Were Green and Didn't Know the Ways of the City. Philadelphia, Pa., October 19.—Zibe W. King, of Waycross, Ga., who was arrested last night and thus prevented from carrying out a scheme to rob William L. Ful-ton, of Savannah, of $350 by the purchase of green goods, was given a hearing today before Magistrate Milligan and held in $1,000 ball for court. The testimony showed that King was the accomplice of George Horton, a notorious "bunco-steerer," and that he has on several occasions induced unsophisticated Georgians to accompany him to New York for the purpose of buying the"money." The work of the Lexo committee in that city, however, balked the present venture, and King brought Fulton to Philadelphia. After the hearing Fulton said to Captain of Detective Miller that he 'was not so easy as he looked."

"I would have made the green goods man give me the genuine money," said the intended victim, "and if they had refused I would have pulled my shooter and killed

King and Fulton have been acquainted for a dozen years. Fulton was placed under the care of detective for his appearance at court.

A Bad Condition.

We have before called attention to a great calamity threatening the people of the South. In no section of the country is there greater need for Liver Medicines than in the sotuh, and this has encouraged unscrupulous persons to take advantage of people's misery and offer them all sorts of stuff as a cure-all for liver troubles. The big profit to the druggist is the road by which they reach the public. Druggists of high honor will not be party to an outrage. Beware of any who tell you that any Liver Medicine is just the same as/Simmons Liver Regulator, put up by J. H. Zeilin & Co. You know it by the Red Z on the

to Say About the Requirements of Modern Times.

Dr. Robert Farquharson, an eminent Dr. Robert Farquharson, an eminent English physician, has an interesting plea for moderate drinking in Blackwood's Magazine. The doctor contends that under the stress and struggle of modern civilization few people beyond middle age are placed under normal physiological conditions, and he thinks that a little alcohol helps to round the corners and plane away the asperities of existence. He advises that alcohol be taken with food, and preferably at the principal meal of the day.

that alcohol be taken with food, and preferably at the principal meal of the day. The advice is also given that it be taken in the form of pure whisky diluted. This he claims aids digestion, and tones up the system to a wonderful degree. Be sure, however, he adds, that only pure whisky is used. "The maker of a pure whisky deserves the gratitude of a nation."

The words of this eminent man need no endorsement. And they are just as true for America as England. The best physicians of the present day all agree upon this point, but they are very careful to say that the whisky must be pure. There is also a universal agreement that Duffy's Pure Malt is not only absolutely pure, but the only medicinal whisky upon the market. It has stood the test of time. It is the most popular preparation in Amirica. It accomplishes what has not been and cannot be accomplished otherwise. Be very careful that your drugget or grocer gives you the genuine Duffy's, and under no circumstances take any other.

FEATURES OF BUSINESS

Review of Bradstreet's and Dun & Co. for the Week. New York, October 19 .- Bradstreet's to-orrow will say:

"With few exceptions, the leading features of the business situation this week have been those of continued moderate im-provement, although the total volume of business, so far as indicated by bank clear ings throughout the country, will require considerable expansion to compare favorably with corresponding totals two years ago. The volume of clearings for six busiress days ending with October 18th, is $919,-000,000, or 2-3 per cent larger than in the third week of October last year, but nearly 31 per cent smaller than in the corresponding week in 1852.

"This relatively favorable bank clearings report is osffet, in part, by a decline in prices of staples, coffee alone scoring a slight advance. At Louisville tobacco is earlier, under promise of a large crop, and hides are lower in price at some of the more important markets, while leather is quoted lower at western cities. Competition of northern lumber manufacturers forced down prices at Chicago and all cept the best grades of live cattle at Oma and Kansas City have sold for less than a week ago, while wheat and Indian corn have also shown declines. The production of iron and of Bessemer steel continues as heavy as heretofore, and quotations have been further shaded. Lard is lower in price, and the prospect for cessation of textile labor difficulties at the east has weakened the print cloth market. "As serious as any other decrease is that in cotton, the feature of trade south this week being a check to purchases by interior merchants for spring delivery and slower mercantile collections, due to lower prices for cotton.

'At four southern cities general trade is reported to have shown some improvement. Memphis, Jacksonville, New Orleans and Galveston, but at Savannah, Augusta, Atlanta and Nashville, increased cotton receipts and lower prices have had an unfavorable influence. At Charleston, Chattanooga and Birmingham business has been

What Dun & Co. Say.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of "Cotton below 6 conts and wheat below 55 cents, each lower than ever since present classifications were known with the exports of gold, instead of products at such low price in October are the salient features in business this week. Distribution of goods to consumers goes on fairly at gains at nearly all points in comparison with last year, but not yet at a rate to sustain the present volume of manufacturing produc-tion, so that prices weaken a little. With many features of encouragement, business has not yet answered expectations and it is evident that the lost of part of the corr crop, and the unnaturally low prices of other great staples, affect the buying power of "Domestic exports from this city in two weeks of October were 18 per cent less in value than last year, while the increase in the value of imports has been 27 per cent. Much of the decrease in exports is in price, but in August and September the quantity of wheat decreased over a third. Provisions and cotton gained, but oil decreused, and in minor products exports in September de-clined 16 per cent. The increase in imports exclusive of sugar was over 35 per cent in September, and in two weeks of October at New York over 43 per cent. With this heavy increase in purchases and a decrease in sales of products abroad, the market for foreign exchange is in position to be quickly affected by withdrawals of capital of apprehensions regarding the future peace of Europe. It appears that three trust companies here now hold over $40,00,90 idle money and that eastern mill loans are being taken from New York by New England banks, while the northwestern demand for money is unusually small. The treasury is again falling backward in reserve, and large imports yield a little less revenue than lust year, while internal revenue for the past three weeks is $4,00,000 smaller than a year ago.

"The dry goods business and textile industries were especially favored by the demand in August and September. Wholesale and then retail stocks have been replenished, and business waits for retail sales, which are as yet slower than was expected. In cotton goods the new business has been narrow and resumption by the Fall River mills has depressed prices to some extent.

"The true and steel business makes a betly affected by withdrawals of capital of ap-

Fall River mills has depressed prices to some extent.

"The from and steel business makes a better showing this week, Bessemer pig having stiffened to $10.90 at Pittsbürg, and at Chicago and New York further structural and bridge orders have been placed, but bar from has fallen to 90 cents for common and $1 for steel at Pittsburg, which are prices below those current in Great Britain. There is a good demand for sheets and some good bridge contracts are reported.

is a good-demand for sheets and some good bridge contracts are reported.

"Fallures in October thus far have been quite moderate in strictly commercial lines, the liabilities amounting to $321.937, of which $1,793.636 were of manufacturing and $1,996.636 of trading concerns. Some failures of banking, investment and loan concerns, not here included, have not proved of general importance. During the past week the failures have been 253 in the United States against 341 last year, and forty-three in Canada against twenty-nine last year."

The products of dainty cake, flaky biscuit superior short-cake, wonderful griddle-cakes, incomparable prie-crusts made with Dr. Price's Baking Powder are supremely gratifying to all who would live well.

FIRE IN BRUNSWICK

In Which the Loss Was Over $30,000 The Damage Done.

Brunswick, Ga., October 19.—(Special.)—At 12 o'clock today smoke was discovered issuing from under the roof of the second story of the Michelson building, occupied by Hoyt Hardware Company, and before the fire was stopped the entire upper portion of the building was gutted. The roof fell in and all the stock in the building was damaged by water. The stock was valued at over $20,000 and the building at $12,000. The buildi and the building at $12,000. AN OVERDOSE BY MISTAKE Caused the Death of Mrs. Freddie Plummer, of Albany.

Albany, Ga., October 19.—(Special.)—Our city was saddened this morning by the tragic death of Mrs. Freddie Plummer, one of its most estimable ladies, in a manner altogether unexpected and very distressing. Last night Mrs. Plummer expected to leave for Brunswick to visit her brother, Mr. John Lehman. She had been suffering from neuralgia and awoke about 11 o'clock and administered a preparation which she had been accustomed to take for the complaint. The portion proved to be an overdose, and notwithstanding the best of medical skill, was given her shortly after, it was impossible to counteract the effect of the drug. She was a sister of Messrs John Lehman of Brunswick, Charley Lehman, of Birmingham, and Alex and T. R. Lehman, of Taliahassee, Fla. Her funeral will occur tomor-Plummer, of Albany.

NOW SPEEDING AWAY

The Street Railway People Have Reversed Trolleys and Gone Home.

MR. JOEL BURT ELECTED PRESIDENT

The Barbecue at Ponce De Leon Springs Was Delightful.

A GREAT CONVENTION IT HAS BEEN

The Visitors Carry Away Many Pleasant Memories of Atlanta-Routine of Yesterday's Session.

The street railway men have reversed trolleys and are now speeding along on the

They finished up the work of the convention yesterday, just after high noon, and with a grand old-fashioned Georgia barbecue as a wind-up, dispersed in the same happy humor that characterized their stay in the Gate City of the South throughout.

It has been a great convention and a good meeting. Never, perhaps, were there so many good souls called together by the president of the American Street Railway Association, and sure it is there was never a more enjoyable gathering of the street car men of America than this has been.

From start to finish, the convention has been a success. The crowning feature of it, however, has been the social phase. The local committee on entertainment went to work with a hearty zest weeks ago for the furtherance of this particular part of the convention. Nothing was left undone that might have been done for the entertainment of the guests of the city, and all of the visitors will carry away with them warmest feelings for the city of Atlanta and the people who have built it.

'We are all dead in love with this town," said President Payne just before he ad-journed the meeting. "We will not soon forget the many courtesies that have been shown us by the southern people, and we will remember Atlanta when the exposition opens. We have inwardly pledged our hearts to come back and visit this splendid city when the flags are flying gay and free and the gates of the great exposition are flung wide open to the world."

The sentiment was taken up by all present, and it is certain that Atlanta will have all the street railway men once more one

The members of the association rejoice that they decided to come to Atlanta, It was a revelation to many of them to come and spend three or four days in the heart of the sunny south. Many of them had never seen cotton growing in the fields before, and it was amusing to see them paying marvelous prices for cotton bolls as souvenirs of their trip. Others were profoundly interested in makig a study of the conditions of the darkies of the south. What a picture it was yesterday on the grounds to see them tossing up coins to a great flock of "little town coons" just for the fun of seeing them scuffle and wrestle for them in the sand, sometimes fighting over the prize. But the greatest curiosity of them all to the northern visitor was the old-time Georgia barbecue that was given on the beuatiful lawn at Ponce de Leon springs yesterday just after the convention had adjourn ed. This was a perfect wonder to them. Captain Bob Lowry, in charge of the entertainment, spared no pains in making the "cue" all that it ought to be. B. W. Kleibacker, who knows what delights the palate of the most fastidious epiure, gave all of his attention to the roasting of the delicious viands and when the crowds gathered about the tables he was.

ready with one of the most tempting arrays of barbecued mutton, pork and beef. There were more than six hundred hungry mer and women on the grounds in time to partake of the great feast, and the way they did make way with the delicious meats, pickles. Brunswick stews and beer was something marvelous. They had all heard of the typical old Georgia barbecue and they realized every expectation in the enjoyment of the occasion.

It was a picturesque feast-so cool and restful there beneath the dense foliage of the stalwart oaks and elms that shade the ny and the breeze delightfully refreshing, as it swept down upon the scene through the gold-tinted leaves of the trees.

It was a beautiful climax to the contniuous round of pleasure and joy that has been reveled in by the visitors by night and by day since they came to Atlanta, and the memory of it will linger like the visions of a bright happy dream!

predicted in The Constitution several days ago, Mr. Joel Hurt, of this city, has been elected president of the American Street Railway Association.

The election took place yesterday morning when the session was called to order.
Chairman McLean, of the committee on nominations, reported the following list of new officers and they were all elected unanymously by the committee.

Mr. Hurt, the new president, is well Mr. Hurt, the new president, is well known as the man who has advanced the rapid transit interests of Atlanta to the degree of perfection now enjoyed. He is known as one of the most gifted men in this line of work in the United States, one on the pluckiest and brainlest men in the business and one of the most broad-minded and patriotic men of the new south. Mr. Hurt is a native Georgian, having been born in the city of Columbus. He came to Atlanta a number of years ago and began life here, since which time he has been building up a name as a most suc-

He is strictly a self-made man. When he came to Atlanta he was a poor man, and is said to have had nothing with which to make a start in the world save the indomitable perseverance that has characterized his life work. For a time it was a hard matter for him to keep up with the debts he ventured to make in confidence of his capabilities and possibilities, but soon debts he ventured to make in confidence of his capabilities and possibilities, but soon he was on the wave of success and his talents and unswerving labors began to reaptneir rightful rewards.

He is now regarded as one of the ablest financiers in the south.

It was a compliment to Atlanta when Mr. Hurt was elected president of the association and an honor to himself worthily won and richly deserved.

It was decided at the morning session yesterday to hold the next convention in Montreal.

There were only two places that engaged the serious consideration of the convention—Montreal and Philadelphia.

The committe left the matter with the association to decide. There was quite a fight over it. The delegates from Philadelphia fought mantully for their city, but it was to no avail. It was urged by the delephia fought manfully for their city, but it was to no avail. It was urged by the delegates that these trips are taken as much from a source of pleasure as business, and for this reason it was desirable of selecting Montrea; the trip there being one of sight-seeing and pleasure.

There were speeches made for both places by enthusiastic delegates. The exhibitors all wanted to go to Philadelphia because it would be easy to get their alsplays there, and they claimed that the exhibits were a great part of the convention. The vote was: Montreal, 38; Philadelphia, 17, and was received with loud applause by those who favored the former.

A Committee on Insurance.

A Committee on Insurance. In view of the many questions of insurance arising out of the meeting it was moved and carried that a committee on insurance be appointed to make report at the next session of the executive committee The committee will be as follows: Russel B. Harrison, chairman, Terre Haute; A. Dyer, Augusta, Ga.; C. Perrine, Trenton, N. J.; Mr. Lusher, Montreal, and Mr. Baumhauff, St. Louis.

Constitutional Amendments. Secreatry Richardson reported some pro-posed amendments to the constitution and by laws of the association, which, after some discussion, were adopted upon the ex-planations given in advance of the amendments by the secretary as follows:

"Two proposed amendments, one to the constitution, the other to the bylaws, are herewith submitted, and, though it would not be binding in any sense, we should pe pleased if a vote were taken at this meet-ing, without debate, that we might ascer-tain whether the judgment of the associaing, without debate, that we might ascertain whether the judgment of the association is in accord with that of your committee, on both subjects. The proposed amendment to the constitution to provide for the admission of individuals and companies not street railways, associate members, under certain conditions; such character of membership having been round conducive to the general welfare of kindred associations.

"The proposed amendments to the bylaws has in view morning sessions only; providing for less exhaustive meetings; for more opportunity for social enjoyment, as well as to give more time to examine the display at the exposition which has become so important a feature of our annual meeting. "Article III of the constitution shall be amended so as to read as follows:

"Section 1. There shall be two classes of members—active and associate.

"Section 2. Active members shall be American street railway companies or lessees or individual owners of street railways; and each member shall be entitled to one vote by a delegate presenting proper credentials.

"Section 3. Associate members shall be individuals or firms, or companies, not embraced in section 2. who have been recommended by an active member. Associate members shall not be entitled to vote.

"Article VII. of bylaws shall be amended by the substitution of the word "Tuesday' for 'Wednesday,' and by the addition of the following words to the first sentence, namely, 'and shall continue four days.'"

Mr. Hurt Sent For.

Mr. Hurt Sent For. In view of the fact that Mr. Joel Hurt had not been present when he was elected president of the association a committee was appointed to notify him of his selec-tion. Mr. Hurt was found in the exhibitor's hall and made a very happy speech accepting the high honor that was bestowed upon him, expressing much gratitude and pledging his best efforts for the furtherance of the associations' best interests. His speech was received with loud applause.

Several papers already reviewed in the columns of The Constitution in advance. were read by tule only, owing to the haste of the convention to adjourn. The papers will all be mailed to the members. The convention adjourned at half past 1 o'clock until the next meeting in Montreal, next October.

SCENES AT THE BARBECUE. It Was a Revelation to Many of Our Northern Friends-All Pleased.

A genuine old-fashioned barbecue! That was what they all wanted, and that was what they had. The visitors from the north had heard of the concern all their lives, so they said, barbecue, of the olden vintage.

Captain Bob Lowry knew how to do it up to the queen's taste, and when the crowds went from the machinery hall to the grounds around beautiful Ponce de Leon springs, they found one of the grandest feasts in readiness for them they had ever before experienced.

They sniffed the fragrant order of the broiling meats from afar, and came with a rush, for if there was ever more tempting and appetizing odors in this wide world than those one whiffs around a barbecue pit they have not been recorded on the scrap books of the chefs of the civilized world. The grass around the tables was green the air was cool and pleasant, the trees were red and gold in the variagated hues of their foliage, and the day was as bright and sunny as the world is wide. Far down amid such surroundings the crowds gathered between the hills that encircled the valley of Ponce de Leon and the pretty blue smoke that curled upwards from the fanciful picture gave additional beauty and attractiveness to the scene. The street railway people and many Atlantians besides gathered around the boards, which were arranged in a way that accommodated all the vast throng within a com paratively small space, and the feast began. Twenty-five or thirty darkies rushed back and forth up and down to the long tables with their loads of delicious meat and dainty viands and the hungry multitude ate with wondrous devouring power.

Captain Harry Jackson and Major Living ston Mims did much to make the visitors have a good time at the cue. They told stories and recalled pleasant incidents at former cues to groups of northerners here and there all the while. Many of the visitors were particularly interested in the study of "how the thing is done" and stood a long while on the brink of the pit looking at the cooks turn the meats in the poles upon which they rest while undergoing the roasting process.

The spread was greatly added to by the refreshing beer that was on tap on the ground nearby. Several huge kegs of beer were there for the visitors to drink, and they partook of it most freely.

All in all the barbecue may be called the most interesting part of the entire convention to the northern people.

Scenes at the Trains. Last night at 11 o'clock hundreds of the delegates were congregated at the union passenger depot to take the trains that were about to depart with them back to their homes in the north.

There were two trains to be run out of Atlanta by the Southern, one of them carrying five sleepers through to New York, and the other carrying four sleepers and a dining car.

One of the trains will run by way of Luray cave, the other by way of Asheville,

N. C. The departing visitors gathered around their trains and sang happy songs until the engines steamed away and even then it was with reluctance that they hushed their serenade to the city of Atlanta and their paeons in praise of the people who resid the next boisterous inquiry.

And then they all joined in like a choru of college boys, and said:

"He's first in war, the first in peace-the first in the hands of the city polee-a-ece!" It was a gay crowd. They sang "Should Auld Acquaintance be Forgot?" and ther sang "How Can I Bear to Leave Thee?" and next, "Meet in the Lane Tonight at Nine," and last of all they sang "Home, Sweet Home."

Lionel C. Levy Responds. "The sentiment to which it is my privi-lege to respond is a modern paradox, the ac-curacy of which I am not prepared to admit except for the purpose of refuting it.

"Abundant crops of cotton still in its fleecy whiteness and russet-robed corn, yet standing in the shuck, attest the fenerous return from our harvest fields and hill-sides which in their due season bring the purpling grape, the pear and luscious peach, the fig and pomegranate in a very prodigality of rich fruitage.

"Our short winters are but as genial spring to those of the frozen north and east and the bitter, blinding blizzard of the west, while soft breezes cool the star-lit summer nights beneath the southern cross and bring refreshing slumbers with trenewed strength for the coming morrow. Living under the bluest skies and genial sunlight of this favored land among fair women who glory in their gentle womanhood, angels in peace and heroines in war, sovereign queens over the hearts and homes of a race of men brave and loyal, who rejoice in their dominion. This land of the south, the old south, has become as a valley of hope, of fertile fields and vine-clad hills, lulled to rest by the soft symphony of swift waters, waked by the whirl of the shuttle and the loom, gladdened by the grace of God, with 'corn, and wine, and cil,' oranges more golden than the fabled apples of the Hesperides, with tempting syrups distilled from the waving cane and honey, from scented orange blossoms, sweeter than that of the bees of Hymettus, we are bounding forward under the impulse of those mighty forces which, in the form of universal education (steam and electricity), are in this age of human possibilities directing the destiny of the old south to new conditions upon its great march of pogress to a safe and glorious consumption, imbued with that spirit of patriotism, loyalty and truth, which can alone p struct our tracks in the streets. The public has appreciated our efforts and sustained us loyally. "I shall not have time in this paper, nor do I feel that it would prove interesting, to go into the details of my studies and investigations concerning rails, foundations, joints, pavings, ties, etc., or into the details of the conclusions that have caused me to accept the present 'all steel track' as our present standard.

"The time at your disposal is limited, and what you want is results, and I shall endeavor to lay investigations, theories and speculations aside in this paper and as briefly as possible make a report that will give you results also, in smoothness of track, durability of construction and economy of operation, if you will follow our example and advice.

"There has been in the past too much attention paid to nutors, generators, cars, power houses, etc., and too little to the foundaton—a perfect track.

"The development of electricity as a motive power for street railway service, was very rapid, and it is only natural that the inexperienced should be misled in their hurry to change power and have an electric road that would make them very rich in a year or two.

road that would make them very rich in a year or two.

"The agents of many electrical concerns were chiefly interested in selling apparatus and with the apparatus sold the future of the road and their ability to earn a profit, did not enter into their calculation. "Is it any wonder then that many roads should find, after a year or two of experience, that the track was too light for the cars and motors, and the cars and motors were too heavy for the track, and that both were worn out and required rebuilding at a time when the great panic had reduced traffic to its lowest point? Light and abused tracks and worn-out cars and motors, coupled with reduced traffic, have brought to too many roads the unwelcome guest—the receiver.

to too many roads the unwelcome guest—the receiver.

"Many of these roads, through receivers, or in their reorganized condition, are profiting by experience, and giving proper and careful attention to the track.

"It seems strange to me that street railway track construction should drift so far away, in theory and practice, from steam railway track construction. One had but to study the wonderful displays showing the development of track construction in the transportation building at the world's fair, to acquire a liberal education on the subject

"The Terre Haute road has indeed had a fortunate experience. Its management early realized that successful track construction should approach as far as possible, and not deviate from, further than necessary, the best steam railway track consruction. So today the Terre Haute road is an all T rail road, and every block of track in paved streets of so durable a character of repairs.
"Terre Haute, although a small town at the close of the great civil war, was very enterprising and determined to have a street railway. A company was incorporated for this purpose in 1856 with ample capital and commenced to lay track early the following year, when one and a half miles were completed. The operations of the company and its trackage increased as the years rolled by like other horse or mule railways. Its earlier operations are not interesting in connection, with this paper, as they were after the manner of other roads and of a type fumiliar to all street railway men.
"It is an interesting fact, however, in con-

nen. "It is an interesting fact, however, in con This an interesting fact, nowever, in connection with the present low price of steel that the side bearing flat iron rails purchased by the company in 1867 cost $108 per ton. These rails were used about twenty years and then thirty-eight-pound girder rails were and then thirty-eight-pound girder rails were substituted.

"The franchise of the company does not contain any requirements as to style, character or weight of the rails. While there has been no expression from the public on the subject, the management feared that the general and popular prejudice against the use of Talls in the streets would appear in Terre Haute. They, therefore, hestated about so redical a change, but appreciating the good results that would come from the use of such a rail, they decided to place a trial order.

"No publication was made of the fact that they intended to use T rails.

"The first T rail laid by the company was on South Third street, and in the fall of 1890. This rail was laid preparatory to changing the motive power from horse to electricity. The management proceeded to make plans to lay this track with caution and fear as to the way the public would receive it.

"The old girder rail on Third street was silently, steadily in the wide waste of waters, unseen and unnoted, yet by its warm, undeviating current guides the mariner upon his way and gives life and warmth, soft, balmy air and rich fruition to every land it touches, so does the resistless influence of the old south pulse its fervid current through the hearts of its people, crystalizing, reproducing and perpetuating that living human type of southern men and women, faithful alike to the ennobling traditions of the past, the exacting duty of the present and the rich promise of a future, the brightness of which refulgent and all glorious with the rays of sublimated faith and hope, is but the reflection of that sublimer light from which they stream, as the light of the sun and stars to the earth finds its way through the aisles of time and space. Consecrating to ourselves, to our posterity and to humanity, this grand realization under its new conditions, of the old south that was, the old south that is, the old south that shall forever be!" eive it.

"The old girder rail on Third street was "The old girder rail on Third street was taken up, new ties distributed, and when everything was ready the T rail was distributed in a matter-of-fact way, as if it was the only rail that could be used, and a force of men put to work in laying them. The mayor of the city came around shortly, report having reached him as to the company laying a steam railway track, and when he saw the reports were true said with some excitement, 'What are you doing here, putting a steam road in our streets?' The superintendent, who was on the spot, was equal to the emergency, and replied pleasantly, but earnestly, that the track was being built for an electric railway. The mayor replied that that could not be the case, as the rails were steam road rails. The superintendent then informed him that these T rails were the only rails adapted for the successful operation of electric railways, and while it appeared to be the steam road rail, it was, in reality, very much lighter (the section being the pound T) than a steam road rail. Further explanation satisfied the mayor and convinced him as to the merits of the T rail. In a short time he not only became interested but enthusiastic, and brought councilmen to see the rail, and explained to them its advantages for electric street railway service. They, in turn, brought prominent citizens and others to look at it, and explained those advantages.

Thus, by tact and management, and perhaps some good fortune at the start, the mayor, council and the public welcomed the T rail as an improvement and a necessity in securing the electric railway service, which they greatly desired, and the road was happily started in the right way with T rails without opposition, adding a great value to the plant. The only fear and worry was by members of the company. They were timid as to the T rail, and feared that it would not be successful in paved streets. From this good start it has been a steady march of improvement.

ATLANTA, GA., October 20, 1894.

The Race in the Tenth. One of the most interesting of the congressional races in Georgia this year is that in the tenth district between Hon. J. C. C. Black, the present incumbent, and Hon. Thomas E. Watson. The Constitution takes this occasion to extend a word of sympathy and support to the democracy of that district in its effort to re-elect Major Black, who is now serving his first term, and who has made in every respect, a wise, conservative, faithful and prudent representative of the people of his district.

Major Black is entitled to re-election and fully deserves the hearty support of every democrat in this district, and there is certainly not a man in the district who voted for him two years ago who should not now be glad at having the opportunity of endorsing that vote. A great deal has been said, and much has been claimed by the populists, concerning the alleged counting out of Mr. Watson two years ago. Great in-justice has been done not only to Major Black, but to the democrats of the tenth district by the systematic effort which has had as its studied purpose the presentation of Mr. Watson in the role of a martyr, and Mr. Black as having occupied a seaf to which he was not entitled. It has been held that Richmond county's vote of more than 12.000 in the last congressional election was prima facie evidence of fraud and that on an honest poll and a fair count, it would have been impossible for that county to have developed anything like that voting strength. This has been the contention of the populists, and with this as a premise they have for two years urged a systematic crusade against the fairness of the count by which Major Black was elected. In 1892 the pell of Richmond county as it appeared from the report of the comptroller general, was 11,500. Thus it will be seen that the vote of the county did not go wide of the strength to antagonism to the democratic nominees. which it was entitled. We do not pretend to say that there were not some irregularities in Richmond county, but we do say that the election in that county was not a whit more irregularly conducted than in some of the populist counties of the district. On the other hand, the vote of Richmond county was a lesson in law and order as compared with the wild discrepancy between the voting strength and the vote polled in some of the counties which the populists carried. In Columbia county the total polled there was 1,216, and there were 2,103 votes cast in the November election in 1892. The voting strength of Lincoln county was 959, and 1.188 votes were cast. In McDuffie county the poll was

1,328, and the vote cast was 1,622, and the taxbooks were destroyed so as to prevent the democrats from weeding out the illegal votes. Thus it will be seen that Columbia county cast nearly twice as many votes as it had polls, and Lincoln and McDuffie nearly 50 per cent more than the taxbooks showed they were entitled to. In all three of these counties the democratic vote was small-almost nominal.

This demonstrates conclusively that before the populists should engage in troubling themselves about the mote in the eyes of their democratic brethren they should at least give some attention to the beams in their own. It demonstrates that if there was any fraudu lent voting in that district-and, of course, there was-the populists were more guilty of the offense than the democrats, and that in the populist counties the fraudulent vote was by far in excess of that in the democratic counties, in proportion to the legal vote of the respective counties. It shows that the effort to make it appear that the populists in the tenth district have a monopoly of the honesty of the district, as represented at the ballot box, is entirely unfounded and that, according to their own standard, the democrats of the district were far less guilty of wrongdoing than they. The populists should cease to discuss the last election in the tenth district, at least until they can explain satisfactorily the fraudu lent voting in the counties where they had control.

Major Black should be re-elected, and It is a matter of gratification to the democrats throughout the state that Hon. Boykin Wright, one of the most fearless and aggressive democratic leaders in the state, is again in charge of the campaign in that district. If there was reason for Major Black to win two years ago, there is more reason now for he has the advantage of experience and the people have the advantage of knowing that he has made an able, conscientious and fearless representative; that he has manfully defended do defend the democratic party against every pledge of the democratic plat form, and that if there has been any failure to redeem these pledges, Major Black, and such representatives as have stood with him, in fighting for the people's interests, have not been responsible for it.

Hon. C. H. Brand.

Senator-elect C. H. Brand, of the thir ty-fourth district, will be a candidate for president pro tem. of the senate, having abandoned his idea of becom ing a candidate for the presidency of that body. Mr. Brand concludes not to make the race for the presidency on account of the fact that a contest has been filed by his opponent, Mr. Baxter, against his right to a seat in the senate. Of course, if Mr. Brand were chosen president of the senate it would be incumbent upon him to appoint the various committees of that body, including the committee on privileges and elections, which will sit in judgment on his contest. Appreciating the situation. Mr. Brand voluntarily retires, and at the insistence of many of his senatorial colleagues, has consented to allow the use of his name for president pro tem.

Mr. Brand is a young man of splendid ability and sterling integrity. He will be one of the most active and valuable members of the senate. He Is a graduate of the University of Georgia of the class of 1881, and is one of the most prominent attorneys in northeast Georgia. He is a well equipped parliamentarian, and there is not a member of the senate who could discharge the duties of this position with more satisfaction to his friends, or with more credit to the body of which he is a member, than he. We trust that he will be elected.

The Situation in New York.

From a democratic point of view the situation in New York is deplorable. We believe there would be no doubt of the election of Mr. Hill, the democratic nominee for governor, and the success of the democratic party in a majority of the congressional districts in the state, were it not for the disaffection being created in New York city, under the direction of Mr. Charles S. Fairchild and those who seem to be in sympathy with him as against the regular democratic nominees.

It is said that democratic "dummy" candidates for congress will be run by the Fairchild element in almost every district in New York city, and probably in several districts in Brooklyn, for no other purpose than to divide the democratic vote and paralyze the efforts of the democrats to maintain their normal strength in the election of next month. If Mr. Fairchild succeeds the democratic party is lost in New York. After its many years of unbroken victories, it will suffer a defeat from which it will take it a long time to recover, if it ever recovers.

What does Mr. Fairchild mean? What sort of a democrat is he? Does he feel under no obligations whatever to the party which has honored him with a seat in the cabinet and which has in many ways bestowed upon him evidences of confidence and esteem? he deliberately scuttling the ship because he cannot control it?

Suppose Mr. Fairchild succeeds? What would that success amount to? He does not hope to elect a single one of his candidates. It is not even a remote possibility, and he does not claim that to be one of his purposes of his His success will simply mean the defeat and the downfall of the democratic party in New York and the triumph of the republicans. If this is what Mr. Fairchild wants the indications are that he will be accommodated, if he continues his reckless and unprecedented course of antagonism to the nominees of the party. In the name of the party and in re gard for the future hope of the party, Mr. Fairchild and his sympathisers should desist in their disastrous conduct!

The democracy of the whole country is vitally interested in the result in New York, and in attacking the democratic organization in that state Mr. Fairchild and his followers are undermining democratic ascendency in every part of the country.

The Democratic Pledges.

We print elsewhere a letter from Mr. A. B. Shockley, an old friend of and a subscriber to The Constitution. He refers to some advice we gave him in a private letter in reference to supporting the nominee of the democratic party in 1892, and asks us some questions in regard to results.

Our correspondent ought to know, if he has kept up with the course of affairs in congress, that the democratic party cannot be justly charged with the postponement of financial relief-with the temporary repudiation of the platform declaration that pledges the party to the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver as the standard money of the country.

The responsibility rests entirely with a few bolting congressmen-pretended democrats-who, by joining the republicans, were able to defeat and temporarily postpone all financial legislation promised by the platform. Why should our correspondent or any other sensible person do the democratic party the injustice of confounding it with those eastern bushwhackers who were elected to congress under the name of democrats in order that they might more perfectly carry out the designs of the Shylocks and their partners in Europe.

It seems to us that it ought to be perfectly plain to every intelligent voter that these eastern bushwhackers are not only not the democratic party, but that they are not even democrats. Why then should the party be held responsi ble for the successful efforts of the coalition to defeat platform legislation? This being so, the complaints and criticisms of our correspondent fall to the ground We make no excuses for individualswe do not defend any person who was or is opposed to the restoration of silver to its old place in our currency system as the unit of value and as a part of the money of final redemption-but we

the unjust charges that would make it ble-in the face of facts, that ought to be known to every voter-for the temporary repudiation of any platform pledge.

Men as intelligent and as earnest as our correspondent can afford to be just. The issues involved in the democratic financial policy are of such vital importance that no man, who believes in that policy, or who believes in democratic principles, can afford to lose sight for a moment of the real causes of the failure of the party to substitute democratic legislation for the Sherman

We regret to see that our correspondent and other earnest men are falling into the trap that has been set for the democrats of the south and west by the eastern bushwhackers. Our correspondent is blind indeed if he does not perceive that there is now and has been for some time a deliberate effort on the part of the schemers who are in favor of the single gold standard to divide the democratic party. The developments in Nebraska and the bushwhacking campaigns that have been made in some of the southern states ought to open the eyes of the people to the effort that is now under way to defeat silver legislation by dividing the democratic party so that the apostles of John Sherman may be able to get hold of and control the machinery of the organization.

It is true that there has been an untimely postponement of the democratic purpose to restore silver to its old place, but when our correspondent, or any other democrat, deserts its ranks, he makes further postponement possible and contributes materially to the success of the schemes of the element that fought the democratic policy in congress.

Our correspondent says he has gone into the populist party because he believes in the principles of that party. but we suspect that his real motive lies back of his mistaken belief that the democratic party itself, and not a few irresponsible individuals, is responsible for the postponement of financial relief. The populist party has some democratic principles in its platform, such as the free coinage of silver and the income tax; but its main plank-the government ownership of the railroads -is not only obnoxious to every idea of democracy, but is a scheme that finds favor only in the monarchial countries of Europe, and there it is not successful. Such a project is opposed to all ideas of financial reform. The condition of the people is bad enough now, but it would be infinitely worse in every respect if the wild scheme of government ownership of the railroads could be carried out. It would involve the issue of hundreds of millions of interestbearing bonds and place upon the shoulders of the people a burden of taxation almost unendurable. It would not only make a dangerous increase in the army of office holders, but would immensely increase the power and influence of the bondholding class.

From first to last Thomas Jefferson was opposed to centralization, and oppostion to any increase in the powers of the federal government is the cardinal principle of Jeffersonian democracy. The great founder of our party would scorn to consort politically with any organization in favor of government ownership of railroads.

How and Why.

A correspondent writes: "If the government cannot create values, how can it ver dollar by stamping it at the mints?" In the simplest way imaginable. By creating a demand for silver as a money metal. The demand at the open mints would be constant. It would never be satisfied. An unlimited demand would be set up, and as the supply of silver bullion is limited, the value of the metal would necessarily respond to the constant and unlimited demand at the open mints.

With this demand set up every holder of bullion silver could carry it to the mint and receive in exchange for every 37114 grains a full legal tender silver dollar, which he could use in the payment of all his debts both public and private.

Now we ask our correspondent if any holder of silver bullion in this country would be likely to take less for it either in gold or silver than the full legal tender dollars that he could get for it at the mints? It is just as reasonable to suppose that an owner of wheat would sell it for 50 cents a bushel in St. Louis when he could get a dollar a bushel in New York.

To widen the circle of illustration. does our correspondent believe that any holder of silver bullion in any part of the civilized world would take less for it than the sum he could realize by exchanging it for American cotton, wheat and other commodities? Less freights, commissions, etc., the foreign bullion owner could, with 3711/4 grains of silver, buy a dollar's worth of any American commodity in any part of the world.

The demand at the open mints of the United States, backed by the commercial power of the nation derived from the necessity that the world is under of buying our staple products, would extinguish the commercial value of silver or to state it differently, the commercial value would be forced up to the mint value, and 3711/4 grains would be worth a full legal tender dollar. With the value of silver thus uplifted it would be impossible for Europe to buy our wheat and cotton at starvation prices. It would be impossible for Argentina or any other country to compete with our wheat producers in any part of the world. It would be impossi ble for Europe to buy our cotton at prices measured by depreciated silver.

In Justice to Judge Newman. Our contemporary, The Evening Commercial, does an injustice to Judge Newman, of the United State's court in a statement in its yesterday afternoon's issue, that Mr. P. J. Moran, of The Constitution, was discharged from service as a grandjuryman because he had been writing articles about the hardships of the revenue laws, which the court did not approve.

cuse Mr. Moran from jury duty for this term as his service was n Constitution on account of the fact that several members of its force were out of the city on leaves of absence, while the session of the street railway conven tion and the approaching assembling of the legislature required the attention of The Constitution's available force, particularly during the absence of those who are now out of the city. The fol lowing note from the court, received on the 18th of October, explains itself: Judge Newman desires me to inform yo in answer to yours of the 17th instant, that he will excuse Mr. Moran from further attendance upon the court as a grand juror for the term.

O. C. FULLER,

We are confident The Commercial will take prompt occasion to make the correction to which the court is entitled. Of course, the error was purely unintentional, and as a matter of justice to Judge Newman, it will be promptly corrected, with the knowledge of the facts as above given.

The Price of Cotton.

We call attention to a communication published elsewhere on this page in reference to the call for a meeting of the executive committee of the State Agricultural Society to consider the advisability of taking some action by which the farmers can obtain a better price for their cotton.

The communication is from one of Georgia's most distinguished citizens. As will be seen, he commends the contemplated discussion of the question by the State Agricultural Society with a view of putting on foot some concert of action for helping the cotton growers of the south. Cotton is now too loweven below the cost of production, and it will not do to ascribe this condition entirely to heavy receipts, for the crop now being harvested is not as large as that of 1891-92, which sold for more than this year's crop is bringing.

Our correspondent is right in saying that no step should be taken which would retire even any considerable part of the present cotton crop without the equivalent of its value being put in circulation. Of course, those who advanced the money on this year's crop are entitled to be paid. If, however, it is possible to obtain further advances on the present crop with the cotton it self as security, the farmers will be enabled to meet their obligations to their creditors, just as though they sold their cotton at the present depressed price, and they would thus be enabled to hold it for better times.

We are glad to know that the State Agricultural Society is to give this matter its consideration, for it is of such importance as to merit the serious attention of our people.

If The Macon Telegraph could convince property owners that there has been no fall in property values it would do a great work The average Ohio man is as anxious for office as ever. He is tariff or anti-tariff as the occasion may suggest. Mr. McKinley is a long time discovering that his tariff law has a punctured tire. Mr. McKinley and Mr. Johnson, of Ohio, are trying to exchange skyrockets. The Savannah Press says "gold has be come scarcer because the country has been flooded with lightweight dollars." Will The Press kindly tell us in what part of the country this "flood" has occurred?

Tammany seems to be in a tight place. At the same time it should be remembered that Tammany has a way of not staying in

Perhaps The Baltimore Sun is doing Mr. Gorman a good turn by making him the author of the democratic tariff law. It is a pretty good law.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE. The Export on Cotton.

Editor Constitution: The foremost politcal economist in the United States, perhaps, in a recent letter to me relative to my suggestion that the clause in the con stitution of the United States prohibiting export duty on cotton be provided, states: "It would tend to develop cotton in the Ar-gentine republic, the only section of the earth's surface from which the south may expect future competition in cotton corre o rapidly in wheat ...

This is an important admission. Another correspondent who is one of the most successful manufacturers in the state of New York, suggests that if a heavy import duty n manufactured cotton goods be incorpor ated in the proposed bill it would make this country the greatest manufacturing country of cotton goods on earth. He is right. If such a bill could be passed our cotton shipments to foreign countries would be manufactured fabrics, rather than raw cotton. That is what is needed. The Daily Financial News of New York has been sent to me with a marked editorial containing the following statement: "We have stated and believe that at the present time, the south offers the best field for investment to be found in he world. It is the only set tion of our country which enjoys a monopo ly in its specialty. Wheat fields and gold nes and silver mines, as well as clipping and stock raising can be duplicated elsewhere, but cotton culture, except in limstates. Other parts of the world are grow ing less cotton every year. In other word cotton can be profitably raised in the south at prices which defy competition, and for this reason the south is getting, if it has not already got, an entire monopoly in its spe-cialty. Now, if by the blockade of our ports from 1861 to 1865, the price of cottor rose from 6 cents a pound to nearly $2 a pound, sufficient proof is offered of the con ectness of the opinion of The Financial News. The party that will incorporate these two planks in its platform, viz: An export duty on raw cotton, and an import duty on manufactured cotton, will sweet the south. Can it be done?

Answered Elsewhere Editorially. Burk, Ark., October 16 .- Editor Constitu tion: In looking over my old files today came across a letter that I received from you November 8, 1892, in answer to one I had written you a few days previously in regard to your course in supporting Mr.

Cleveland, etc.
You said in your letter that the reaso why you were supporting Mr. Cleveland was because he was the nominee of the democratic party; that you had oppo nomination, but it was your duty, as a good democrat, to submit to the convention, and that you felt sure that I would very soo approve of the wisdom of your course. Now, hoping that it will not be intruding upon your valuable time, let me ask you a few questions with due respect and courtesy.

Has the democratic administration effected anything beneficial to the masses of the people that you could now ask me to greatly approve? Have they not (the democrats) repudiated every pledge they made to the people ex-Is there any great difference in the workings of the democratic and republican parties?

Is not Mr. Cleveland about as good a publican as Ben Harrison or Tom Reed? Are not times just as hard as, or a little harder, under the Cleveland administration than they were under the Harrison administration? Is there anything that points to better times in the near future?

Is it wise in us to longer trust a party that has proven itself by its own acts unable or unwilling to give any relief to suffering humanity?

I believe in the principles of the people's party because I think they are the same principles Jefferson advocated, only they go a little further and advocate the government ownership of railways, and it is reasonable to suppose that if Jefferson was alive today that he would be a strong ad-vocate of the same principle, as it is in line with his others

The Low Price of Cotton

Editor Constitution.—I see with great leasure that Colonel Waddell and others of the State Agricultural Society are preparing to concert some means for helping the cotton growers of the south. It seems to me that 5 cents is too low for cotton even with the heavy receipts, which, however, are far below those of 1891. People who ow far below those of 1891. People who owe money might store in warehouses their cotton subject to the order of the creditor and the credit thus obtained might be passed on from debtor to creditor until the strain is removed. I do not believe it right to delay payment of debts, but creditors who owe nothing might very well thus secure themselves and merchant creditors, who are also debtors, could use the cotton receipts to satisfy those to whom they are due money. Something surely should be done to prevent the sacrifice of due money. Something surely should be done to prevent the sacrifice of the cotton crop. It sold for more than the present prices with a larger crop than the one now being harvested in 1891 and 1892. Then we were in the midst of a panic and now, with returning prosperity and a smaller crop the price should be greater than 5 cents per pound.

Calhoun Times: There is an unusual quantity of squirrels in the woods this fall, to the delight of the sportsman. Among the wooded hills and along the forest fringed stream the modern Rip Van Winkles have shot to their hearts' content.

Barnesville Gazette: The hunting season has opened up and those fond of the sport venture out occasionally and have a few hours' pleasure. The first partridges killed this season by a Barnesville hunter were bagged by Mr. T. B. Lyon last Monday afternoon. They were quite fine, being large and very fat. What is nicer than a fine mess of quail for supper or breakfast when they are fat and tender and are nicely cooked. There is nothing better.

FOR FAIR ELECTIONS.

The demand for fair elections is voiced by every newspaper in the state. The Con stitution's recent editorial on that line has been heartily endorsed, and the one leading question now is that of a fair ballot. The Savannah News speaks as folows:

"That the system under which elections are now held offers opportunities for sharp practices, and that those opportunities are taken advantage of in a great many in stances, are facts well known to every body having even a superficial knowledge of practical politics in Georgia. The populist leaders, nearly all of whom are old-time democratic hacks, know all about the tricks of the trade. They have 'been there' and doubtless the populist success in several of the counties in the late election were brought about through the practice of things learned in their early teaching. "When the carpet-bag horders were in the state, and when state elections were threatened with federal bayonets, there may have been some excuse for lax election laws and sharp practices at elections, but no such excuse exists now. The demand of the times is for absolute honesty and fairness. "It is to be hoped that the present cry for a state registration law and the Aus for a state registration has and the Adstralian ballot system, or some other system that will provide an honest means of holding elections, wil reach the ears of a sufficient number of the members of the legislature to have some effect upon the The above extract from our Savannal contemporary might be supplemented with others expressing the same sentiments from influential Georgia newspapers that have fallen in line for fair election methods. fallen in line for fair election methods. The Cedartown Standard says there is no lack of candidates for the superior court judgeship of that circuit. Judge C. G. Janes, the popular and able gentleman who has filled the office so, satisfactorily the past four years, is a candidate for re-election, and his host of friends are confident of his success, believing that he should be given the customary democratic re-election. Colonel Ivy F. Thompson, one of Polk's oldest and most respected practitioners, has announced himself in the race as a democratic candidate for the judgeship. Mr. Lavender Ray, who recently moved from Coweta county to Donga Spring, in Douglas county, is also a candidate for the judgeship.

The Barnesvill Gazette says that the race for the Flint judgeship is again a lively one, and it is being watched with considerable interest. There are three candidates, Judge J. J. the exposition yesterday morning Mr. Grant Wilkins was elected chief of construction of the Cotton States and International exposition.

The title indicates the character of the duties that will fall upon Mr. Wilkins's shoulders if he accepts the position. He will have direct charge of the erection of buildings, the placing of exposition machinery and all work relating to construction on the exposition grounds. The office is a new one, and is one of considerable importance. Much depends upon the manner in which the work is carried forward, and, realizing this, the executive board elected Mr. Wilkins to the position.

Mr. Wilkins has been chairman of the committee on buildings since the organization of the exposition management. He has given the matter of selecting plans for the buildings and all other preliminary ork relating to this branch of the work particular attention, and he was a strong factor in the selection of plans for the exposition buildings. He favored the plans of Mr. Gilbert, of New York, and, knowing his practical knowledge of building, the exposition management was influenced in no small degree by his preference in the

Colonel J. Troup Taylor, one of the oldest and best known citizens of Georgia, is confined to his home, No. 29 East Ellis street. For years Colonel Taylor has been a figure in Atlanta's history and in the history of the state. He was for many years connected with the state legislature in some capacity or other and was known as one of the best clerks the state senate ever had. His work was of the highest or-der, and many were the compliments paid him, beside the one great compliment a

For the past few months Colonel Taylor was in the clerk's office of the Fulton superior court and there was a most valuable man. Recently his eyesight has become so impaired that he could not work longer, and now he is nearly blind. Colonel Taylor has friends all over the south and throughout Virginia, of which state he is a native, who will hear of his affliction with the greatest sorrow.

MR. WILKINS NAMED. MORE SOLDIERS COME

The New Fifth Regiment Band Arrived Yesterday and Is Now Ready to Make Music.

Two more companies of the Fifth United States infantry are yet due at Fort Mc-

And then the regiment will be complete. The companies to come are H and E, both of which have been stationed for a long time at the United States military post near Mount Vernon, Ala., and both of which will arrive either today or tomor

Since the order of the war department, issued some weeks ago instructing the Third artillery to leave Atlanta and the Fifth infantry to occupy Fort McPherson, there has been quite an amount of speculation concerning the character of the soldiery coming. Than the officers of the Third artillery there have never been in the south a more popular lot of gentlemen. Every one of them, from the commander down made friends of all with whom they met, and those who met them were always delighted to call them friends and to meet them again. So it was with the private among those with whom he was thrown. Gentlemanly and clever, every member of the Third went away from At-lanta carrying with him the friendship and good will of all who had come in contact with them.

Naturally those who are liable to meet the soldiers who succeeded the Third have been desirous to know of what stuff the Fifth was made. Safely it can be said that while Atlanta has lost men liked and admired, she has gained men who will and can take their places with an ease and grace, and that within a short time the officers and mem-bers of the Fifth will be as popular in the Gate City of the south as were the officers and members of the Third. It is a part of the history of the United States army that the Fifth infantry is and long has been one of the best regiments in the ser-vice. Its officers are of the highest character and stand right up among the front in the war department, where the history of the army is written officially. Personally, they are all of the most agreeable and cultured school, and it is said of them that friend and foe allke who once encounters them never forgets them. In peace as in war they never turn their backs upon any one and when one once surrenders to an officer of the Fifth he is allowed to retain his side arms and is paroled, but so kind has been his treatment that he becomes a lifetime prisoner. In the regiment are some of the best men the United States army enrolled during the war as well as some of the brightest grad uates of the military academy of recent years. Among the graduates of West Point it is considered quite a distinction to be enrolled in the Fifth, and when once enrolled in that regiment it is with the great-est reluctance that one leaves it. The post life of the officers is the happiest and best attainable, because of the great socia-bility of the gentlemen composing the official list.

This spirit is carried to the ranks, and the privates and non-commissioned officers are among the best in the service, and none are prouder than when declaring the fact that they are members of the Fifth.

As an illustration of the mettle to be found in the regiment it is only necessary to say that one of the captains and two or three of the lieutenants have risen from the ranks, having won their spurs by hard study and strict application to the duties placed

Of the regiment, composed of eight companies, six are now quartered at Fort Mc-Pherson. The companies now in camp are A, B, C, D, F and G. These have been coming in for the past five or six days, in fact, some of them having arrived a week or ten days ago, and they come to Atlanta from every direction. Company A comes from Fort Levenworth, Kan., while C and D come from St. Augustine, Fla., where they have been for a long time. B comes from Jackson barracks, near New Orleans, and in that city the company passed two or three years, officers and men making friends alike. Company F comes from Houston, Tex., and in that thriving city of the Lone Star state, the men were much liked. Jackson barracks, at New Or-leans, gave up Company G, too, and it is one of the best companies in the service. The other two companies, E and H, have as been said, been stationed at Mount Vernon Ala., and will reach Atlanta today. The regiment is commanded by Colonel Osborne, who is one of the most charming men personally in the army. Besides that, he is one of the strongest officers in the army, and stands high throughout the service. Colonel Osborne has been in the service for many years, and will be retired in the course of three or four years. With the members of his staff and two companies he reached Atlanta yesterday morning on a special train, the train stopping at the depot at the barracks.

Colonel Osborne's staff is composed of Lieutenant Colonel Kellogg, Major Russell, First Lieutenant H. Leggette and Lieutenant Kimball.

The captains of the companies are Captain Forbes, of C; Captain Romare, of G; Captain Woodruff, of D, and Captain Carter, of F.

The members o the Fifth have one of the finest bands in the service, and it is led by the finest cornet player in the army, Sergeant Labetter. The band is composed of twenty pieces.

The biggest run of the game was scored by Mr. Dunn, who piled up thirteen, while Mr. Conyers's biggest run was eight. Mr. Dunn's average was two and one-half, while the average of Mr. Conyers was a little less than one and one-half. Mr. Dunn strung his 125 points while Mr. Conyers's string measured eighty buttons.

The second game was between Mr. Conkling and Mr. Pattillo, a handlcap. Mr. Conkling was to do 150 while Mr. Pattillo was to chalk up 115. Mr. Pattillo put his last button up while Mr. Conkling stood his string at forty-seven.

The referee was Mr. Tom Clayton, and the scorer was Mr. John Connolly.

The game tonight will be between Mr. Hal Morrison and Mr. C. B. Echols. Mr. Echols will undertake to do 150 while Mr. Morrison is doing 115.

Cotton in New York Surely, But Slowly and Reluctantly Follows Liverpool

HER DOWNWARD COURSE.

The Engagement of $500,000 Gold to Be Shipped Today Had No Bad Effect on the Market-Wheat Slightly Higher.

The cotton market acted in a steady manner yesterday and there were no features of importance noticeable, outside of the very heavy receipts.

January opened about 2 points lower and the market ranged within a very narrow range the entire session. The lowest point for January showed only 3 points decline, which was, for the most part, recovered before the close, which was steady with sales of 114,100 bales. Liverpool reported a fair business doing, with sales of 15,000 bales in the spot at a reduction of 1-32d in the price. The spot sales of Liverpool the past week amount to 95,000 bales, and the stock is being gradually reduced on that side, as is also the price. The receipts at the ports the past week have been quite heavy, and have run ahead of the 9,000,000 crop year, but from the 1st of September to date, the receipts, as com-pared with 1891-92, are about 377,000 bales

THE STOCK MARKET.

The Market More Active at a Higher Range of Prices.

New York, October 19.-Speculation at the stock exchange was more active today, the result of efforts on the part of the bears to cover short contracts. The opening was firm, notwithstanding the engagement of $500,000 gold for shipemnt to Europe by the steamer Ems tomorrow. The firm shipping the gold secured it at the subtreasury by paying legal tenders. General electric was heavy at one time an fell to 33% on liquidations of weak accounts. Chicago Gas, Manhattan and American Sugar also re-ceived some attention from the bears who expected to check the rising tendency by raiding these issues. Chicago Gas sold down from 76½ to 75, Manhattan from 109 to 106 and Sugar from 87% to 86%. The hammering process had no influence on the general list which held firm throughout. In the last hour the covering assumed larger propor-tions, and especially in the Grangers. Chicago Gas, Missouri Pacific, Lead, Western Union, Louisville and Nashville and General Electric. St. Paul sold up 114 to 61%, North western % to 104%, Rock Island % to 60%, western % to 194%, Rock Island % to 90%. Missouri Pacific % to 28%, Lead 1 to 40, Western Union % to 87%, Louisville and Nashville % to 54%, and General Electric 24 to 35½. The strength of the market in the last hour of business was partially due to the weaker condition of sterling exchange, bankers' 60 day bills having sold as low as 486½ in exceptional instances. The closing sale was 486%. Stocks closed firm and 1/8 to 11/2 per cent higher, General Electric leading. Manhattan fell 1. In the inactive stocks. precipitated, however, the active stocks will doubtless continue to be purchases on fair concessions for the present.

Eventually, however, lower prices will prevail. With the present plethora of money at their command it is easy for maniputators to advance their specialties, but that does not keep the latter up. Cordage gold last year equal to 150, recently at 0. Intrinsically it was worth at the zero mark as much as when quoted at its highest price.

as much as when quoted at its lighter price.

Manipulators having advanced it to 150 could not only not sustain it, but failed to prevent it from faling to nothing. Conditions prevailed and decided the fate of the unfortunate stock finally, as they will do now in regard to properties the surroundings of which make decreasing earnings and lower dividends inevitable, for example the Grangers.

Bankers were non-committal as to the question of gold shipments at the end of the week. That any increase in the demand for exchange will necessitate shipments seems a sensible conclusion. Europe has sold securities and is still selling them in a small way, atoney is 1 per cent, and products are so low that, as Mr. Russell Sage has pointed out, they make our exports small.

London was not an influential factor,

London was not an influential factor, though quotations there were lower, due to bad earnings and foreign houses here sold some stocks. St. Paur's decrease for the second week in October was $224,000, as against $164,-30 the first week. The loss was much larger than expected—even by the bears—and as usual the buils explained it by the argument that in the corresponding week in 1889 passenger business was abnormally large.

It is interesting, therefore, to compare last week's return with that of preceding years in which conditions were normal. Take the second week in October, 1892, compared with which last week's earnings show a decrease of $168,320, or the like period in 1891, compared with which he decrease was $149,206. Are such comparisons significant?

Do they show the effects of 50-cent wheat, of poor crops and the shrinkage in the buying power of the northwest? St. Paul was depressed in London by poor earnings which checked an advance in it here. They were bad enought to have caused a decline but for the buying of the bears, which, indeed, was the chief support in all the Grangers.

There was no short interest in the invest-deed, was the chief support in all the Grangers.

There was no short interest in the investment property of Baltimore and Ohio, so when it was announced that the directors had reduced the dividend from the basis of 5 per cent to 4 the stock fell from the 70s into the 60s, selling 6 points under the close of Tuesday. Bad earnings explain the management's action.

That the company is feeling the effects of conditions from which most railroads are now suffering is evidenced by its September statement and result for the quarter. In the former period the decrease in gross was $275,000, operating expenses were reduced $57,000 and the net loss was $28,000, making the decrease for the quarter $319,732.

As Rock Island was the first large western system to officially recognize through a reduction in dividends, the adverse outlook, so the Baltimore and Ohio is the brst prominent eastern system to do the same. Which naturally leads to discussion and conjecture as to which of the trunk lines will follow the conservative example set by them yesterday?

A long interview published in the morn-ag to which of the truth lines will follow the conservative example set by them yesterday?

A long interview published in the morning papers with President Poberts, of the Pennsylvania, attracted widespread attention. At first it made a favorable impression, but after digesting his remarks the reader must have been left with the impression that one must not expect too much from he present state of affairs.

The Atchison board met yesterday and accepted the resignation of Director Alden Speare. Mr. Duval will be elected to succeed him at the approaching meeting. A count of proxies was made by the board with the result that it was found that the directors hold proxies on an absolute majority of the whole capitol stock, and a large majority over the highest vote ever before cast at an annual election. The 1 umber of proxies actually held by the board at the present time amounts to 597,642 shares.

Transactions at the stock exchange amounted to 191,000 shares, of which 36,000 were Sugar. Manipulators of the latter were very busy, advancing the price a point to 87%, and selling so freely that in the afternoon Sugar was the weak feature to the market, closing under its first price and 5 down on the day.

market, closing under its first price and % down on the day.
Rio Grande Western reported an increase of $6.600 in earnings for the second week in October, while Atchison for the first week decreased $9,915 and Baltimore and Chio Southwestern decreased $2,854 for the second week. In the latter period Denver and Rio Grande increased $24,000 and Northern Pacific increased $3,000.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Cotton Letter.

New York, October 19.—Summary of Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Cotton Letter: The foreign markets showed greater steadiness than had been anticipated this morning, but the receipts were upon such a large scale as to cause a further decline in the market of 3 or 4 points, which was subsequently recovered on reports from New Orleans, accompanied by buying orders, that one of the presses in that city was on fire and would destroy a portion of the crop. Receipts at the interior towns are extremely large at Texas points, but light in the Atlantic and Mississippi towns. The entire movement promises to be 250,000, against 180,000 last year and 220,000 last week. There has been some investment demand by people not connected with the cotton trade, but the market still lacks speculaion, and is oppressed by the offerings of southern buyers in Europe. Prices are extremely low and cotton cannot be produced at present prices except under the most favorable circumstances. During the afternoon the market reacted when it was learned that ent prices except under the most favorable circumstances. During the afternoon the market reacted when it was learned that the New Orleans fire had been extinguished and that there were but 1,500 bales in the press which was on fire. The final prices were steady at about 3 points decline from yesterday.

Riordan & Co.'s Cotton Letfer.

New York, October 19.—(Special.)—Liverpool, though still active, makes no pause in her downward course, and New York follows slowly and reluctantly but surely. Traders here who incline to favor an advance are appalled at the large movement, and still more at the frantic eagerness of the south to force its cotton on the already glutted market. January today opened at 5.67, declined to 5.64, rallied to 5.69, and barely touched 5.70, and then, on large offerings again broke to 5.65. The close was steady with 5.66 bid for January. How much lower we shall go with ideal weather throughout the south is a subject on which predictions are mere guess work, but profitable as short sales have proved for months past we advise against them now. advise against them now

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Chicago, October 19.—Reports from New York of heavy export sales at all the seaboard markets saved prices of wheat in this market from an inglorious decline today. All day until the last hour, there was a heavy feeling hanging over prices, fears that some of the big lines, bought yesterday and at the immediate opening today, would go overboard from lack of outside news, frightening the crowd, and inducing them to back down when offerings were made. Pardridge and his following were pressing their advantage and selling quite freely. First advices gave the export sales at 56 loads, but before the close they had been worked up to 116 and a decidedly bullish sentiment then pervaded the pit.

December wheat opened from 52% to 52%c, sold between 52% and 52%652%c, closing at 52%c—%c higher than yesterday. Cash wheat was in good demand, red winter for spot offerings bringing \(\frac{1}{2}\)%c over December. Otherwise prices were steady.

Corn—Whilst corn displayed a willingness to advance with wheat, prices were not in touch with the weakness of that grain. The weather bureau predictions of wet weather induced marked strength in the December future during the first hour, but May was well up with it at the close. Business was not active, but the demand was of a better character than the offerings. May corn opened from 49% to 49%c, sold from 49% to 49%c, sold from 49% to 49%c and as a whole the trade was of the usual uninteresting nature. The close was strong with May \(\frac{1}{2}\) chicked higher than yesterday.

Provisions—No shorts found it an easy matter to cover their product today without influencing prices in a perceptible manner.

Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter. Chicago, October 19.—Strong cables caused strength in wheat at the opening and the market has been held steady throughout. There was a fair demand and a good trade, though somewhat irregular market. Baltimore advices indicate a firm feeling there, and reports 16 loads taken for export. A large receiving house bought a fair line of December, creating a slight rally. News in general was of a bullish character, but lack of speculation prevented any material advance. Indications today were much more favorable to holders, and it looks now as though investors were about to reap more favorable to holders, and it looks now as though investors were about to reap their reward.

Corn.—The better feeling at New York, together with higner prices on the other side, have been the features in corn. The range, however, still keeps within 46%c. Receipts are still light and there is evidently a good cash demand. The market has been extremely dull with trade limited and the temper bullish, closing firm at about the highest point.

Oats have ruled firm, but inactive. Offerings were limited while there was but a scattering of buying orders. May opened at 33%c.

Provisions have been quite weak. Packers were free sellers and the only support the market had was a little demand from shorts. It looks like a hard matter to bull provisions unless there is a good upturn in corn.

IN BRACING OCTOBER.

Strength Should Return and Little Arthur Green Turns Up in Languer Go.

No Season is So Good for Building Up the Brain and Body.

Paine's Celery Compound's Work of Mercy in Countless Homes.

The proctrating heat of summer has long since gone.

There is now but one excuse for languor and lack of energy—ill health.

With the return of bracing, vigorous weather the thoroughly well men and women find the prospect of work attractive. Business looks promising. The indolent, unambitious feeling of a few months ago gives place to energy and hard work.

That is, provided one is well.

To the sick man or woman the prospect is doleful. The thousands of persons who is doleful. The thousands of persons who worked right through the hot summer, and the many whose vacation, instead of recruiting their strength, has only made increased demands on their tired nerves and brain—these unhappy ones should take advantage of the bracing days and nights to store their bodies with pure, vigorous blood and their nervous system with energy be-fore the cold weather overtakes them in their weak, "run down" condition.

Paine's celery compound should be taken during the month of October. It will build up the tired system wonderfully. Increased appetite and steady gain in weight fluring the month will show unmistakably the stimulating effect of this remarkable nerve food. To those who know anything of the working and the purpose of the nervous system it is evident that the prompt feeding of the nerves with Paine's celery com-pound must be followed by a decided gain in health and vigor of the entire system. There is no organ of the body that is not controlled by the nerves.

It is putting off of attention to the signs of heart weakness that fills the statistics with overwhelming numbers of deaths from "heart failure." Those who at once build up their strength and nourish the feeble nerve centers with Paine's celery compound check weakness of that important organ as readily as weakness of any other part of the body. This greatest medern invigo-rator, discovered by the man whom Dart-mouth ceilege is most proud to honor, Proressor Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., was welcomed as a more than extraordi-nary step in advance of anything before at the command of physicians, for curing rheumatism, neuralgia, debility. Countless women, weak, thin, mere bundles of nerves, and discouraged by their inability to gain strength, have been started on the sure road to recovery by Paine's celery com-

Physicians prescribe it the world over. Get strong and well with Paine's celery

Here is the experience of Mrs. William McCollom, of Trenton, Mo., who says: "I have had neuralgia for eight or ten years. I began to think that eventually it would cause my death. I would have three or four awful attacks in a month, and all the pain would settle in the base of my brain and extend down my back, lasting several hours.

"We tried everything that we could think

"We tried everything that we could think of, but nothing did me any lasting good until my mother came on a visit and told me to try Paine's celery compound, as she was using it for nervous trouble with wonderful success. We both think your compound saved us from going crazy. I only used two bottles of it, but I have not had a return of my old enemy since.

"One thing is certain, and that is the doctors could not do anything for me. Some told me it was caused by nervous trouble, some said it was female trouble, some said one thing, some said another, but thanks to your wonderful compound I am free once more. I have often thought that I would write and tell you what a relief it is to be free from pain, but I neglected it from time to time. You may believe that I shall always speak a kind word for Paine's celery compound."

HE IS RED-HEADED.

Montgomery

WITH A THRILLING KIDNAPPING STORY.

He Says That Two Tramps Tempted Him Into a Freight Car, Where They

Rept Him on the Way.

Arthur Green is a small, red-headed lad of eight winters, who, despite his tender years, has figured in local police annals in no small way.

About two years ago he greatly distressed his parents by running away. It developed that he had gone to Macon on a freight car, and he was stopped there and brought home. Shortly after this he disappeared again, and was gone for four days. The distressed parents of the truant youth put the police on his trail and searched for him far and near, but he could not be found.

After four days he was quietly discovered at the Kimball house, where he had been living on the fat of the land and in a most contented manner.

He has run away once or twice since that time. He has always been recovered by his parents, always without serious damage. He now turns up in Montgomery, Ala., with a very thrilling tale of being kidnaped. Those who know the lad at this end of the line give him credit for a very vivid imagination, and do not credit his thrilling story which, as it comes from Montgomery, is as follows:

Montgomery, Ala., October 19.-(Special.) A case of the Charley Ross variety has developed here, and Atlanta has furnished the boy. About midnight last night a small eight-year-old white boy was found sitting on a trunk in the rear of the union baggage station, sobbing as though his heart would break. When asked his name the little fellow blubbered out, "Arthur Green— I want to go home."

He tells an interesting story. "Papa is dead," he says. "Mamma lives at No. 430 East Fair street in Atlanta. Her name is Mrs. Emma Green, and she makes dresses. I have a little brother and sister. Papa was a dry goods clerk down town in Atlanta. I was working for a man in Atlanta at 50 cents a weekf but mamma sewed one night and did not wake me up in time next morning, and so I lost my job for being

When asked why and with whom he had left home, he replied:
The Boy's Story.

"I left about three days ago. Two tramps brought me away. I was carrying a note for a gentleman when a man came up to me and said, 'Lad, don't you want to go down the road with me?' I told him I couldn't, but a freight was passing just then and he put me in it. Then he (his name was Pat) and his partner, named Jim, jumped in the box car. I could tell they jumped in the box car. I could tell they were tramps. We went to Macon, and they made me beg things to eat for them. Jim found a train which had an empty pas-senger coach. They raised a window and put me in, telling me to hide under a seat.

Then they got in a box car and came here. I haven't seen Jim or Pat since I got here." Arthur says he asked an engineer yesterday to take him home on his engine but that the man had told him he could not do it in the day time, but might do it at night. He was waiting on the trunk for his en-

The waif was taken to the police station and given comfortable lodging. He cried awhile and then fell asleep, and slept like baby. He says his mother is very poor, and cannot send him money, and it is probable a pass will be secured for him today. In conversation he has used several expressions like "hobos" and "bums," which led to accusations that he had been over the road before, but he howlingly contends that such is not the case. It is believed that he ran away from home at the instigation of the tramps, but that he is anxious to return, there is no doubt.

Luxury and necessity are combined in Dr. Price's Baking Powder. It possesses a charm to delight the epicure and a utility to satisfy the exacting housewife.

in the south is getting on.

The telephone company is now setting the poles between Griffin and Macon. It was found necessary to put in new poles all along the line and this delayed the work considerably. The pole setting will be com-pleted by the middle of next week and the wire stringing will be started. It is estimated that the force of hands now at work can string ten miles of wire a day and at that rate, allowing for bad weather and other delays the wire will all be up by the 12th or the 13th of November.

Then through the office at Griffin, the one at Barnesville and the one in Forsyth the quiet Maconite can hear the hum and rattle of the bussy people of the busiest, quickest town in the south and over the wire may catch some of the swiftness with which Atlantians are building the coming metropolis of the south. rate, allowing for bad weather and other

LOVE IN THE SANCTUM

The Secret Marriage of a Weekly Editor and His Fair Associate.

WEDDED DURING THE PRESS MEETING.

Kepta Secret for Nearly Three Months and Now Made Public for the First Tim .. How It Was Arranged.

Marvelous and mysterious are the ways of the Georgia editor. He is by nature a slave to fate. Sometimes she deals gently with him, and he feeds on the fat of the land. Sometimes she is harsh and he sits him down to blackberries and 'simmon beer.

The unexpected is his forte. He is made up of pure patriotism, sound sense and simple sentiment. These ingredients show themselves in different ways and at different times. There is romance, too, and when this takes shape it always produces something unexpected.

Now is uncovered for the first time a strange story involving two prominent figures in Georgia journalism; a story of long devotion, sudden determination and continued concealment that culminated in Atlanta during the days of the weekly press

On Wednesday morning, August 8th, in the little library of the Trinity church parson age, Mr. Charley Brantly, editor of he Valdosta Telescope, and Miss Florence Williams, a beautiful and talented young lady, for some years identiefid with newspaper work in the state, were united in the holy bonds of wedlock.

It was a secret marriage and not the most intimate friends of either party had any idea of what had happened. Nor have they since been informed. For three months, in fact, the affair has been kept strictly secret and the city of Valdosta, where both the young people reside, will be shocked with genuine surprise when the announce ment is known. It was one of those queer and unexpected things characteristic of the Georgia editor.

Mr. Brantly has been engaged in newspaper work for three years actively. He is a brainy editor and a live correspondent. It was during the session of the Georgia Weekly Press Association in Brunswick last year that he first met Miss Williams. She at that time was proprietor and editor of The Statesville News. Her quick wit and ready repartee, as well as her charming face, made a deep imon the young man, and pression he sought her company often. They became fast friends, and when the session adjourned both parted reluctantly, Miss Williams went back to her paper and Mr. Brantly left for Milledgeville, where, with Miss Ellen Dortch, he was engaged in getting out The Chronicle, one of the brightest sheets in that section.

Several months passed, and one day there appeared the notice of the burning of the building in which the paper of Miss Williams was operated. She had lost everything. Miss Dortch knew Miss Williams well and the next week wrote a letter asking that she come to Milledgeville and assist her on The Chronicle. The young lady declined at first, but afterwards yielded to the earnest and repeated request. She came to Milledgeville October last and it was there for the first time that Editor Brantly and herself became associated in their work.

During the months that followed the paper was fairly ablaze with news. The editorial page, too, became more vigorous and the discussion of political problems were often interspersed with sonnets. It was something new to the people of Milledgeville and they read with interet the charming verses on moonlight and babbling brooks and spring time and true love.

The poetry continued to come until last March, when Mr. Brantly decided to leave for Valdosta and take charge of a paper in that town. Miss Florence Williams had formerly been connected with a paper in Valdosta and had made many friends there. Thus it happened that when Mr. Brantly left Milledgeville for Valdosta, Miss Williams left too. The Valdosta Telescope was established by them. Here they worked side by side. The friendship formed in Brunswick had rapidly ripened into love, and their affection for each other daily increased.

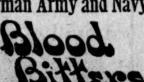

In August came the annual session of the weekly editors in Milledgeville. The proprietors of The Telescope decided to attend, and Monday morning both arrived in the old capital. Mr. Brantly stopped with his family, but he intimated to no one of his affection for the young lady. They attended the banquets together, drove out with the press party and passed the time pleasantly in many ways. The convention adjourned Tuesday afternoon and everybody left for Atlanta, preparatory to making the trip to New York. night they arrived in this city and were given quarters at the Kimball. It was a happy crowd, but the ecstacy of Editor

Brantly was supreme. He had made all the arrangements for making the trip to New York. His passes had been filled out and that morning he packed his grip for the northern trip. The train left at 11 o'clock. About 9 o'clock he was passing through the parolrs when he met Miss Williams. They separated from the rest of the party, and strolled around the arcade for a few minutes' chat. It was then that they came to a sudden unexpected decision. Mr. Brantly not conceal his feelings. He told could not conceal his feelings. He told about his love in gallant style, and amidst the flow of sentiment a question bobbed up. If they loved each other and were going to marry, why not marry then? What was the use of waiting long tedious weeks en the affair could be so quickly arranged? What was the use in going to New York, anyhow, spending days and days of tireful sightseeing, when they could remain quietly behind and crown their love with wedlock? The young editors thought ously. But another question and a more serious one came up. Should they make the affair public? Should they announce to the convention that they had decided all at once to remain behind and get married? Would it not be best to let all the people go and then quietly be married?

This is what the editor and his fair associate determined upon. They dreaded the formality of a public marriage; so it was decided to keep it a secret.

Thus it happened that when the Press Association left for New York the young people remained. At noon they left the Kimball and went arm in arm to the Trinity parsonage. Here they found Rev. Walker Lewis, who heard the story of their love and decision, and there, in the cozy little library, while the rest of the editors were flying on to the great metropolis, the py pair joined hands and took the vot nying on to the great metropoles, the hap-py pair joined hands and took the vows of eternal constancy.

They returned to the Kimball, and that night took the first train for Vaidosta. It was thought best by them to keep strictly secret the fact that they had been married. There was some surprise in that town at their quick return, of course, but no one tnew the cause.

Until now, no one has ever known of the marriage. The couple boarded at the same hotel in Valdosta, and the attentions of the editor to his associate have been take as a matter of course, exciting no suspicion of their true relationship. This romantic story of their marriage leaked out in Atlanta yesterday in a queer way, and will give the people of Valdosta and Milledgeville a sensational surprise. Charley Brantiy is one of the brightest young men in Georgia journalism. He was, for many years before entering the profes-sion, actively a well known correspondent for different papers. Some of his work attracted the attention of Henry Grady, who offered him several positions, but Brantly did not wish to leave the business in which he was then engaged, and declined. Before going into the newspaper work he was con nected as a traveling salesman for a large wholesale house in Milledgeville, in which capacity he is well known over the whole

Miss Williams is a young lady of high attainments and rare culture. She has been a conspicuous figure in south Georgia as a strong and versatile writer.

A delightful wedding, in which Atlanta is interested, occurred last Tuesday evening in Fort Worth, Tex. It was a home wed-ding, and joined in wedlock two of Atlanta's social favorites, a lady and gentle-man both well known and beloved in Atlanta. The bride, Miss Annie Long, daughter of Mrs. S. C. Long, of this city, and sister of Mr. Gus Long, has, since her entry into society, been one of the most attractive and petted members of her circle, while the groom, Mr. Eugene Carroll, is known as one of the most successful and promising young business men of the south. The marriage took place in Fort Worth, where Mrs. Carroll has two sisters, and was at the home of Mrs. L. P. Robertson, one of the sisters. After the marriage the bride and groom left for Atlanta by the way of New Orleans , where they will remain a day or two, reaching Atlanta tomorrow morning Of the wedding, The Fort Worth Gazette

"Yesterday afternoon at 4:39 o'clock at the handsome residence of Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Robertson, 717 Florence street, their sister, Miss Annie Long, was united in marriage with Mr. Eugene H. Carroll of Atlanta, Ga. The wedding, while quiet, was largely attended and was an elegant affair. Dr. Morgan Wells performed the ceremony in his usual happy style. The bride was attired in a handsome gray traveling suit and carried a large bouquet of Marechal Niel roses, the gift of Mrs. Charles Forsyth, in her hand. The presents were varied and elegant. Among the most noticeable were: A diamond breastpin, presented to the bride by the groom; china after-dinner set, presented by Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Adams; set of silver napkin rings, presented by Mr. and Mrs. Terry Townes; silver manicure set, by Walter Langston; set of salt and pepper dishes, by Mr. Zach Castleberry; onyx clock, Messrs. Shepard, Burton and Benson; toilet set, L. P. Robertson, and many others too numerous to Mr. Zach Castleberry, of Atlanta, attended as best man. An informal reception was held after the ceremony, at which all that is delectable in the form of viands was present. "At 6:40 o'clock the happy couple left over the eastbound Texas and Pacific train, followed by the happy wishes and outspoken benedictions of friends. They will spend a week in the Louisiana capital, several days at Atlanta and then tour the norther states, returning home about Novembe

Monday morning last in Indianapolis, Ind., Mr. Thomas Upright, of Atlanta, one of the popular young railroad men of the city, was united in marriage to Miss Florence Steimer, of Indianapolis. The marriage was mnized in the Third Presbyterian church of that city and was one of the social features of the week. They will reach the city this afternoon and go direct to Macon, where they will make their future home Mr. Upright is an Atlanta boy, and has been here for several years, coming here from Indiana. His work on the Georgia Southern railroad requires him to make his home in Macon, but Mr. Upright still claims Atlanta his home.

Invitations are out to the marriage of Miss Lucy Thomilison to Mr. Albert Greer, the marriage to occur next Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents on Edgewood avenue. Miss Thomilison is a young lady of rare accomplishments and will form quite an addition to the social element of Huntsville, Ala, where Mr. Greer, who is one of the rising young business men, is well and most favorably known. The marriage will be a quiet one, only the friends of the contracting parties being present.

One of the prettiest weddings of the fall was solemnized last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wells, on Pratt street, the contracting parties being Miss Flora McDowell, a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Wells, and Mr. Ford Lawson, of Rirmingham, Ala. The ceremony was performed in a happy manner by Rev. Dr. Lawson, an uncle of the groom, and was witnessed by only a few friends of the family. Immediately after the marriage Mr. and Mrs. Lawson left for a trip to Knoxville. Nashville and Memphis. After the wedding trip they will make their home in Birmingham, where Mr. Lawson is engaged in business.

One Fare for Voters.

Every other fall, when the congressional elections come along, there is a grand exodus of government clerks and government officials from Washington. They go home to vote. There is a small army of them and their votes count in the general result. A round trip rate of one fare has granted them by the Southern Railway and Steamship Association, and a circular making that announcement has been issued by Commissioner Slaughter. Not a few clerks will come to Georgia to cast their ballots for the democratic nominees.

It Is Now Bonded. President Spencer, of the Southern, has sent out letters stating that the Southern is now bonded and ready to carry imported goods in bond. President Collier, of the exposition, has received one of these letters It is expected that the Southern will have the handling of quite a large quantity of foreign exhibits when the exposition start to receiving exhibits.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS AND FORECAST

Yesterday morning the weather was cloudy, and from all outward appearances it looked as if the clear, pleasant weather which Atlanta and vicinity have been enjoying for the past few weeks had been broken, but such was not the case, for after a few hours of cloudiness the sun came out and shown brightly during the balance the day, and from reports received by the weather bureau last night, it looked as if the fair weather was likely to continu throughout the day. No rain of any cor sequence was reported from any of the stations. The few light showers which fell in parts of Florida, Alabama and northern were well nigh inappreciable. The inthois were wen high inappreciable. The coolest weather yesterday seemed to be in the vicinity of the Dakotas and the warmest in Texas. In the latter named state summer heat prevailed and maximum temperature of 92 degress was reported. For Georgia, South Carolina and Alabama: Georgially fair.

wider rails. This condition is a great improvement and makes a saving in many ways.

"I. It saves an immense amount of money in repairing the injury and wrenching to track and rapid wear and tear thereto caused by vehicles, and particularly heavily loaded wagons turning in and out and driving along the track.

"2. It permits a quicker and more frequent car service, which all street railway men know means time and money by giving the cars a clear track.

"These are great advantages and will be appreciated by the managers of the lines in the large cities. They can also bear testimony to the large savings affected in the wear and tear.

"To further prevent heavy teaming along the fiange spaces of our track and at the same time make the wear and tear on the street paving, which we are required to maintain a minimum, the following ordinance was passed by our city council October 4, 1852:

"An ordinance regulating heavy hauling over and through the improved streets of the city of Terre Haute;

"Be it ordained by the common council of the city of Terre Haute, that it shall be unlawful for any person to drive or cause to be driven, or permit his or her service to drive upon any street or alley paved with wood, stone, brick or asphalt, any wagon or other vehicle having upon it a weight which, together with the weight of the wagon or vehicle, shall exceed four thousand (4,000) pounds and less than seven thousand (7,000) pounds and less than seven thousand (7,000) pounds be so driven in or upon any such paved street or alley, unless the tires upon such wagon or vehicle, shall be at least three inches in width; nor shall any wagon on vehicle, shall exceed seven thousand (7,000) pounds be so driven in or upon any such paved street or alley, unless the tires on such wagon or vehicle, shall be at least three and one-half (3½ inches in width.

"In closing this report, gentlemen, I wish to thank you for your attention and at the same time express the hope that it will prove, as it was intended, a good guide to you in securing that very necessary condition for successful and economical

"Before closing I wish to call your attention to the fact that through the kindness of the Palge Iron Works Company, I am enabled to show you, in the exhibition hall, a sample of our special track work, made of 72 pound Shanghai steel rail and laid on the Daniels steel ties, as we lay it.

"To the samples and photographs I have with me and to the special track work and samples in the exhibition hall, I invite the attention of all who are interested in the subject of the perfect electric street railway T rail track construction."

LEONHARDT PNEUMATIC FENDER Makes a Splendid Exhibit and Test

at Machinery Hall. Yesterday morning near the machinery exhibition of a street car improvement that is destined to become universally used sooner or later. It is the Leonhardt pneumatic car fender. This fender can be easily attached to any street car and it is impossible for any one on the track, makes no difference how rapidly the car is moving, to be killed or injured. The car in yesterday's exhibition was moving very rapidly, and it picked up, with the greatest ease people in all positions. Some of them were standing, some lying down and others in different postures. e Leonhardt pneumatic fender was the only fender on exhibition at the late convention that made a practical test. It seems to have every point in its favor, combining the good qualities of every fender on the market. Several of the city authorities saw the exhibition and were more than pleased with it, saying that by all means it should be attached to all street cars running, not only in this city, but in every other city in the United States.

It is understood that this exhibition of the Leonhardt safety car fender was very satisfactory to the proprietors. Several orders have been taken for it. It costs very little considering what it will save in life and damage sults. It is, indeed, a great invention and will save thousands of dollars annually to every street car system using it. It is manu-factured by the Leonhardt Pneumatic Safety Car Fender Company, of Baltimore, Md.

He Is Still Quite Sick at His Home

on Angler Avenue. Mr. F. M. Richardson, father of Mr. Frank Richardson and Mr. William Richardson, two of Atlanta's young and successful journalists, is still quite ill at his home, No. 172 Angier avenue. Several weeks ago Mr. Richardson was stricker with paralysis, the stroke being quite a severe one, but being a man of the best and most careful habits all through his life, he was able to overcome the effects and successfully battled against it.

At first it was feared that on account of his advanced age he could not recover, but a strong heart and the good constitution which he had preserved through life have about won the battle for him and he is now much better than he has been at any time since the stroke. However, he is yet quite a sick man. His many friends—and they are scattered throughout the state—are out the state

JUST DESPOTISM.

A Modern Ruler Who Will Recognize No Laws But Those of Nature.

Something of Interest to All.

Were one to venture the assertion that within the borders of the United States are

Were one to venture the assertion that within the borders of the United States are over sixty million despotic rulers, they would be thought insane, and yet figuratively speaking, it is 'true.

We will take one of them for example, the one in which you are most interested. This ruler does not sit on a glided throne, resplendent in the jewels of office. He is modest and his name is "Stomach."

King Stomach is a very quiet, inoffensive sort of a ruler, so long as we treat him well and observe the laws of health. But let us once insult his dignity, or oppose his "rules and regulations," and we are put into the torture chamber and made to feel the wrath of his rebuke.

Let us drop metaphor and talk in plain, simple English. If we violate nature's laws in any way, she at once proceeds to administer punishment by suspending wholly or in part the digestive function. Every dyspeptic stands self-accused of some indiscretion. Ignorance may be his excuse, but neither nature nor the state recognizes this plea.

The stomach is a powerful organ, whose this plea.

The stomach is a powerful organ, whose work it is to disintegrate and dissolve the food which we eat and thus fit it for absorption. Whenever it is taxed beyond its powers, or disturbed from some indirect cause, it is in exactly the same condition that one's limbs are after a ten-mile walk. We say they are tired, they need rest; so does the stomach, but you can't entirely suspend the stomach's work without starving yourself, any more than you can undertake to rest the tired heart by causing it to stop.

Were it practical for a dyspeptic to give up eating and digesting food, his misery would disappear, but such a thing we know has not been practical, at least up to the present time. Recently, however, processes have been perfected whereby foods may be artificially digested outside of the stomach; in other words, that organ can be spared the work of disintegrating and dissolving our food.

the work of disintegrating and dissolving our food.

Paskola is the new artificially pre-digested food. Its success thus far has been phenomenal, as is amply attested by the following quotations from a few of the letters received from those who have experienced relief in its use. Not only does Paskola rest the stomach by providing the body with nourishment in the manner indicated, but it aids the digestion of other foods, hence it is that the people who so willingly offer their testimonials, have found themselves able to eat food which has heretofore caused them the most frightful distress.

selves able to eat food which has heretofore caused them the most frightful distress.

Under date of September 10th, Mrs. L. P. Greenhaus, of Myrtle Springs, Texas, says that she has been troubled more or lesswith indigestion for six years, and for the last year has scarcely been able to be about. About a month ago she accidentally got hold of one of our little pamphlets and began taking Paskola. She adds, "it has been more beneficial to me than all the doctors I have ever consulted. I had given up all hope of being cured until I commenced your food."

John Fleck, of Wilmore, Penn., tells us under date of September 11th, that he, too, has been a victim of dyspepsia for four or five years. He had no appetite, and it was only with difficulty that he could eat anything. For three weeks he had lived on four or five glasses of sweet milk each day, when he happened to notice one of our advertisements in the daily press. He resolved to give Paskola a trial, bought a small bottle and used it according to directions. He concludes: "After the very first dose I felt a decided improvement, and my appetite began to return. I can now eat almost anything without distress in my stomach, and am able to walk around, feeling better each day. I firmly believe that had it not been for Paskalo I should be numbered with the great majority that rest beneath the sod. I therefore unhesitatingly recommend it to all who are affilicted with indigestion in any of its forms."

If you would know more of this interesting preparation, send your name to the Pre-Digested Food Company, No. 30 Reade street, New York, when they will be glad to send you their free pamphlet on the subject of food and digestion.

MR. WOODY'S WIVES.

Reconciled to the Situation, They Follow His Fortunes.

Canton, Ga., October 19.—(Special.)—A few weeks ago a Mr. Woody came to Canton pushing his wordly goods before him on a cart, a woman and baby following closely behind. They found shelter in the suburbs of Canton and, by the help of the people, were getting along fairly well. Sunday last Mr. Woody made such a transformation in his dress, from dirty raiment to cleaner apparel, that small children noted the change, but it appears he dressed, whether unconsciously or not we do not know, to receive another wife, for that afternoon while trudging along the railroad wife No. 2, or, perhaps, No. 1, with five children espied Mr. Woody, the object of her long and wearlsome search, and at once arternoon white trugging along the railroad wife No. 2, or, perhaps, No. 1, with five children espied Mr. Woody, the object of her long and wearisome search, and at once went to him to share with wife No. 2 the companionship, provident care and protection of Woody, who had sworn to love, honor and obey and her only to keep so long as they should live. Usually one wife is enough for a man, but Husband Woody was master of the situation and husbanded his resources and encumbrances with brilliant generalship. He succeeded so well in reconciling the two women that they bundled their goods together and consented to follow him whithersoever Dame Fortune should direct. The caravan—Husband Woody with two wives and six children—left for Roswell or Hall county Monday morning. We know nothing of their past history, but it is understood they were from Murray county. history, but it is from Murray county.

The Mule Went Down.

The Mule Went Down.

Perry, Ga., October 19.—(Special.)—A grass mower was summarily stopped in a peculiar way in Perry last Monday morning. A mower drawn by two mules was cutting the grass off the Culler lot, when one of the mules suddenly entered the earth, hind feet foremost. She had fallen into an old well that had been filled up many years ago. The driver hastily released the other mule, and the one in the well went down about fifteen or twenty feet. Assistance was secured, earth was dug away and the mule drawn out within half an hour, unhurt except a few slight bruises.

The Grand Odd Fellows in Tennessee. Nashville, Tenn., October 19.—(Special.)— The Tennessee grand lodge of Odd Fellows this afternoon concluded the business be-fore it and adjourned to meet at Greenville next year. The following officers were elected: Grand master, W. A. Barry, of Nash-ville; deputy grand master, I. W. Holt, of Daytcn; grand secretary, J. R. Harwell, Nashville; grand treasurer, J. L. Weakley, Nashville; grand warden, J. P. Abernathy, Pulaski; grand representative, B. F. Bing-ham, Memphis; trustees, Thomas L. Risk, Memphis; W. S. Endley, Sparts, and W. Memphis; W. S. Findlay, Sparta, and W. Boright, Knoxville. Grand Master Barry made the following appointments: Chaplain, H. R. Howard, Tullahoma; grand conductor, A. D. Finch, Dresden; grand guardian, Newton Donnell, Bradyville; grand herald, A. P. Rawlings, Sevierville.

Clarkesville, Ga., October 19.—(Special.)—A movement is on foot to have a postoffice established at a point midway between Chrkesville and Aerial. There are a number of good people in that locality and it is hard on them to have to go four miles either way to get their mail.

Cows Dying Out. Ellijay, (Ga., October, 19.—(Special.)—It seems that Ellijay is about to lose all her milk cows. Sheriff Bramlett has lost three, Miss Mary Kirby, John Smith and J. W. Hutchison one each. There are several more sick. The mayor has the carcasses either buried or burned up to prohibit the spreading of the disease.

AN ALL-DAY AFFAIR.

Chambers Yesterday Morning.

Interpreter Jung Find Was Kept Busy with Witnesses-Part of an Old Fend.

It was a day off among the Chinese laundrymen yesterday and all the kicking that the wearers of cuffs and collars may do will not mend matters.

For two years there have been two factions among Atlanta's Chinese population, and all over a laundry. There have beer charges and counter-charges, warrants and bail trovers, and all of this tempest in a tea cup was about to be concluded before Arbitrator L. Z. Rosser in Judge Lumpkin's chambers yesterday.

All this accounts for the temporary stagnation in soiled linen circles, but next week, unless there is dissatisfaction over the verdicts, the local Chinese war will be

Arbitrator Rosser was ready at 9 o'clock vesterday morning and called his court to order. There were not less than twenty Chinamen, two Irish-Chinese and one Irish woman present-all directly or indirectly interested as principals or as witnesses The first case called was the of Chong Yick against Lee Sang Sing, Attorney W. T. Moyers appearing for the plaintiff and Captain Welforn Bray representing the de fendant.

Jung Find, of New York, was present to act as interpreter and convey in verified English the sentiments of the witnesser and the testimony they gave. And before the end Jung Find was invaluable. He was at first directed to give everything said by the numerous witnesses, but after the first trial this mode of procedure was abandoned. The witnesses invariably in-sisted on telling a history of relationships, Sunday school work and laundry bills before answering the direct questions. Jung Find simply gave out the whole relevant

The primary witness in the first case was Chong Yick, the plaintiff, who is a man of gentle mien. Yick was, in fact, apparently on the verge of tears. He testi-fied, for he was able to understand the questions and respond in a sort of rehash fashion, very intelligible and thoroughly effective. He said that it was in the year 1888 that he purchased from Lee Tung, for $405, a laundry on Marietta street. He then sent to Philadelphia for H. Leon, who was his friend, and put him in charge of the laundry. H. Leon had a family and soon brought the family to Atlanta to live. He paid to Leon $10 a month for running the laundry. But Leon's family was ex-pensive and he permitted Leon to take the entire proceeds coming from the laundry. Leon died and witness took charge, remaining there two months. Leon Wing, a cousin of H. Leon, then came to Atlanta and he and Mrs. Leon ordered Chong Yick, the witness plaintiff, out and wouldn't let him return. Later Mrs. H. Leon, who had in the meantime married Leon Wing, sold out to Lee Sang Sing. The cross-examination failed to develop any other material

After the introductory questions Chong Fay was asked by Attorney Moyers if he was present at the transaction between

Lee Tung. Chong Fay replied:
"Olla grgly hgdfer, nynhed dretjkmn okstn qwrd fdeas chig Li Hung Chang ge see retylfd plynt Chong Yick, Lee Tung."
All of which Jung Find translated as "Well, I should say so. After a lot of jollying Chong Yick paid the money and got a receipt." There were more questions, but that was about all Chong Fay knew of the case. Last of all, for the plaintiff, the receipt was introduced. Lee Sang Sing Makes His Talk. Lee Sang Sing then warbled out his side of the case. He simply said, via Interpre-ter Find, that he bought the laundry from Mrs, H. Leon, now Mrs. Leon Wing, and produced the bill of sale.

Captain W. A. Fuller, who owns the place at which the laundry is located, was introduced as a witness and said that it had always been understood by him that H. Leon owned the laundry. He thought that H. Leon had purchased it from Lee

Mrs. Leon Wing was the next witness. She said that she was not present when the laundry was sold, but that she thought it was her husband's and had sold it with this understanding to Lee Sang Sing. She admitted that she had seen Chong Yick about the laundry frequently when her husband was in charge, and that after he died Chong came there for several weeks.

Lum Ling was introduced by the plaintiff in rebuttal of evidence of the defendant. He testified that he worked in the laundry while H. Leon was in charge of it and that he was at work for Chong Yick and so usderstood it and was paid by him.

The case was then argued and given to the arbitrator. As soon as the argument was concluded another of the Chinese troubles were taken up to be disposed of.

A Little Intermediate History. Before the case of Mrs. Leoh against Chong Ah Bing was instituted there were other troubles which are supposed to have sprung out of the original misunderstand-ing. One day Chong Yick was arrested for assaulting another Chinaman of the Leon faction. An umbrella containing a sword was introduced as the weapon he had used. Chong swore he had never seen the um-brella until it was introduced into cour.t He was finally acquitted. Then one fac-tion had another pulled for playing fan tan and the Chinamen arrested declared in court that they were simply celebrating a Chinese feast. Then came the ball trover action of Mrs. Leon against Chong Ah Bing. She alleged that Chong Ah Bing had borrowed a double-case gold watch, valued at $125, from her. She also claimed that he had taken it to New York and there pawned it, giving her the pawn ticket: She was introduced as the first witness in this case, and was exceedingly enter-taining. At first she testified that the watch was a double-case gold watch val-ued at $90. On the cross-examination her affidavit was read by Attorney Moyers and showed that she placed the value of the double-case gold watch at $90. She then testified that it was a single case gold watch valued at $90. Finally she declared that she didn't know whether it was a that she didn't know whether it was a single case watch or not, nor did she know the value of it, except through hearsay.

To prove the value of the watch Captain Bray introduced Thomas Loo Chong, who knew nothing but a little pigeon English.

Attorney Moyers and Captain Bray both consented to give the case to the arbitration. Attorney moyers and Capterial hay both consented to give the case to the arbitrator without argument. There is a third case of these series, the suit of Chong Yick against Lee Sang Sing, which will be heard next week.

Arbitrator Rosser will make his report to Judge Lumpkin shortly.

Peacock had the brightest prospects. Some years ago he was looked upon as one of the most popular young men in Atlanta. His family was well known and had a good social standing. He attended the state university, and among the crowd of jolly students none was better known than happy-hearted, careless Lee Peacock. He returned to Atlanta and for several years engaged steadily in business. But he loved whisky and his taste for the fiery fluid could not be controlled. His fall was rapid. He was arrested several times for being drunk on the street. These arrests became more frequent and in a few months it was not an uncommon thing to see Lee Peacock brought into the station deeply under the influence of liquor.

For the last three years most of his days have been spent at the city stockade. He began to look upon the place as home, and the day after he was released appeared again before the recorder with unfailing regularity to be sentenced again for a stay

Peacock served this sentence and was released. Several days after he had a difficulty with Night Guard Ike Wheeler at the city stockade, and he never recovered from the injuries received.

"He had no business out here," said Wheeler, speaking of the affair. "He was drunk and came here simply to make a disturbance. I came in my house late that afternoon and found Lee there. My wife ran out and told me that he had insulted her and, of course, I was mad. I struck him, but I did not strike him with a gun or with a chair. I used my fists, but I lused them hard and knocked him from the house. I was sorry afterwards that I struck him so hard, but the fact that he had me to my house during my absence and insuited my wife, enraged me."

That afternoom Lee Peacock was carried to the Grady hospital. His wounds were dressed, and he was released next day. After that he was about the station house once or twice, but appeared very feeble. Last week he was taken srlously ill and since then grew worse, until his death yesterday morning.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health or the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect lax-ant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

ening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

In a little house on McDaniel street a blighted life was ended yesterday morning. Weakened by disease, worn by dissipation, Lee Peacock, for several years the most conspicuous habitue of the city stockade, died. It was the sad ending of a sad again before the recorder with unfailing regularity to be sentenced again for a stay at the stockade. He was treated there as a kind of trusty. The guards knew his weakness and pitied him. He was given light duties and often allowed to remain behind while the rest of the prisoners were carried to the works.

There was naturally nothing mean in the make up of Lee Peacock, and it was only when under the influence of liquor when his manner took a vicious turn.

Peacock made many attempts to reform and his friends of better days made efforts to help him out, but the thirst for drink was irresistable. Six weeks ago he announced his decision to reform before Judge Calhoun in one of the most pathetic pleas ever heard in a courtroom. When he had finished there was scarcely a dryeye among the crowd of hardened policemen. He went over his life in a voice choking with grief.

"Judge," said he, "let me off this time and I promise you I will never come up before you again. If you want me to, I will take a Bible oath that I will never take another drop. Look at these old clothes, judge. I just got out of the stockade yesterday, and I haven't had any chance to get any more. I am going out home and straighten up and go to work. I know I have been here lots of times, but I mean what I say, and if you give me a chance, I will try to do better."

Judge Calhoun let him go. Two days, after that he was arrested again and brought before the recorder.

"Judge," he said, with a hearty laugh, "there ain't no une for me to try. Just give me thirty days, that's all you can do for me now."

Peacock served this sentence and was released. Several days after he had a difficul-

FROM THE DRY PIT.

The Story of Roper's Bloody Adventure Reviewed.

HIS ASSAILANTS TO BE TRIED.

The Case Is Set for Next Wednesday. Lumpkin Enters a Plea of Guilty.

The bold mountaineers from Murray county, charged with conspiracy against the United States government in the assault of W. A. Roper last June, will be tried be-fore Judge Newman in the United States court next Wednesday morning.

This was decided yesterday. A more interesting case has never been tried in the northern district of Georgia, and the alleged facts as brought out in the true bill returned by the grand jury, make out an ugly case of violence and conspiracy. The details of the shocking affair are too recent to have faded from the public mind, but a review of the facts at this time will be read with interest in view of the approaching trial.

The parties charged with the assault on Roper are W. R. Morrison, A. P. Duncan, J. W. Red, J. T. Morrison and J. M. Prior to June 11, 1894 a mountaineer by the name of Sam Green was engaged in the liquor business in Murray county without having paid his license. The object of Roper's visit to Murray county was to inquire into the matter and make a report as to the exact truth of the situation. In order to prevent him from doing this and to intercept his movements he was visited by the defendants, according to the true bill, on the night of June 11th. They disguised themselves for this purpose and provided robes and masks in order to prevent de-Roper was stopping at the home of one,

Henry Brown, at the time of this nocturnal visitation. In order to put their evil designs into execution they forced an entrance into the house by breaking down the front door. They found the object of their search and dragging their victim from the bed in which he was sleeping they carried him away from the house and began to beat him without remorse or mercy. He was unable to defend himself against such powerful odds, and was forced on acsuch powerful cods, and was forced on ac-count of physical reasons to yield to the violence that was offered him. Having completed their assault they dragged the bleeding and wounded man to a dry pit about sixty feet in depth and there left him, as they supposed, to die before morn-

This is a mere outline of the story. The testimony will be given from the witness stand next Wednesday morning, and the details of the revolting assault will be dis-

In a second count of the indictment the defendants are also charged with conspira-cy in trying to prevent the arrest of Ab Flood.

Lumpkin Plends Guilty. A. L. Lumpkin, the young man charged with taking the property of Uncle Sam in the postofice department, entered a plea of guilty yesterday morning.

In view of the saving to the government, since a trial was unnecessary, the court was disposed to be lenient and a fine of only $500 was imposed. This was promptly paid, and the young man was set at liberty.

The trial of the two Ballews, father and son, is set for a hearing next Monday. Salt rheum often appears in cold wtather, attacking the palms of the hands and other parts of the body. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, cures sait rheum, and other diseases of the blood.
